

Union Planning Next Campaign To Enroll Ford Group in Ranks

Industrialist Says He'll
'Never Recognize'
Union
ASSAILS SIT-DOWNS
1,800 Return to Work at Hershey Plant in Pennsylvania

Pittsburgh.—The United Automobile Workers of America undertook today one of the most formidable of its enterprises—the unionization of the 150,000 employees of the vast Ford Motor company.

John L. Lewis, head of the committee for industrial organization, announced this objective last night just after Henry Ford had proclaimed that his industrial empire would "never recognize" the U. A. W. A. or any other union.

Lewis was a speaker at a mass meeting of union members in the state fair grounds coliseum. The huge throng, overlooking the building, shouted its approval of the agreement between the U. A. W. A. and the Chrysler corporation ending a strike in its eight Detroit plants.

Always for Open Shop
Ford expressed his stand towards unions at Ways, Ga., in revealing a "brief cessation of activities" in his company's factory at St. Louis. A union leader at the plant said it was due to "a misunderstanding."

The independent motor manufacturer—one of the nation's three largest producers—advised workers recently "to stay out of labor unions" for their own good. He always has been a staunch advocate of the open shop in the motorcar industry.

"We'll never recognize the United Automobile Workers' union or any other union," Ford emphasized in revealing the second "cessation" in one of his plants within a week. The first was a brief sit-down at Kansas City.

Lewis' Comment
"I have no doubt that Mr. Ford will permit as long as his employees permit him to pull that policy and no other," asserted the bushy-haired Lewis. "I have no doubt, however, that Mr. Ford will change his mind."

Lewis mentioned the agreements between the U. A. W. A. and General Motors and the Chrysler corporations and said that his respective heads, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., and Walter P. Chrysler, each "changed his mind."

"You are the reason," the labor leader told the auto workers "You decided you weren't satisfied with conditions in your industry."

Ford's industrial empire is world-wide. It extends to 28 foreign countries as well as some 30 cities in the United States where it has approximately 150,000 workers. More than half of these, about 87,000, are in the Detroit area alone.

His present wage scale is reported to be near $7 a day. The Ford automobile plants operate on a 5-day, 40-hour week.

Green Prepares to Call Meeting on Ouster of Lewis

Washington.—The American Federation of Labor, said today he would call a special meeting of the federation's executive council soon to consider expulsion of John L. Lewis.

Green's announcement followed the receipt of a letter by John P. Frey, president of the A. F. of L. metal trades department, threatening his life if he did not keep out of the Texas oil fields unionization drive.

The federation and Lewis' oil field, gas and refinery workers have started rival organization campaigns in Texas.

Frey said he would leave Monday for Houston to take charge of the campaign, despite the threat.

The federation's Tampa, Fla., convention last fall confirmed the suspension of 10 unions in Lewis' committee for industrial organization but decided not to expel them until further efforts had been made to end labor's big civil war.

DONATES STOCK

Muncie, Ind.—George A. Ball, millionaire Muncie manufacturer, is donating to the George and Frances Ball foundation his entire common stock holdings in Midamerica corporation, an announcement issued at his office today.

The foundation was incorporated March 22 with the secretary of state at Indianapolis. The purpose of the foundation given in the corporation were "religious, educational and charitable."

See Conclusion of Hearings in Week On Court Measure

Committee Expected to Report
Bill to Senate
Soon Afterward

Washington.—The Senate Robinson and other administration leaders forecast today that hearings on the Roosevelt court bill would be concluded next week and that the measure would be reported to the senate soon thereafter.

Senator Pittman (D-Nev.) joined in the forecast of the end of the hearing before the judiciary committee. He predicted also that constitutional amendments would be reported by the committee about the same time as the president's bill.

Pittman would not disclose "what amendments" he had in mind. He himself is supporting one, however, to limit the size of the court to 15 members.

Earlier today, the committee postponed until next week a decision on when to conclude the hearings.

Senator Hughes (D-Del.), anticipating defeat today in his first attempt to end senate hearings on the court reorganization bill, declared he would continue his campaign until it brings results.

"I believe minds or the judiciary committee are made up on this question," he said, "and repetition of testimony such as we have been receiving serves no useful purpose."

The first hint that opponents might be willing to discontinue the hearings came after a conference in the office of Senator Van Nuys (D-Ind.). But while Hughes talked in terms of days, they spoke of at least another fortnight of testimony.

Another complication arose from house passage late yesterday, by a vote of 123 to 14, of the Summers bill to allow the attorney general to intervene in private suits attacking the constitutionality of federal laws.

It is designed to speed an appeal to the supreme court when lower judges invalidate a law.

Says Congress 'Sitting Down' On Labor Issue

Pennsylvanian Resents Delays on Sit-Down Strike Question

HOUSE PROBE SEEN
Not Expected to Join Senate in Condemnation of Sit-Downs

Washington.—Representative Rich (R-Pa.) accused congressional leaders today of "sitting down" on the sit-down strike issue.

Rich shouted to the house that President Roosevelt had invited Speaker Ruggles, Vice President Garner, and the Democratic leaders of the senate and house to discuss sit-downs upon his return recently from Warm Springs, Ga.

"Ever since," he said, "they have been sitting down."

Pennsylvania farmers, who ejected sit-down strikers yesterday from a Hershey chocolate plant at Hershey, Pa., he said, are going to show the nation and congress how to handle such strikes.

He spoke in advance of house consideration of a resolution for an investigation of sit-down strikes.

"His face reddening, Representative Rayburn (D-Texas), house majority leader, jumped up to assert:

"As usual, the gentleman from Pennsylvania is wrong. As usual he doesn't know his facts."

Didn't Discuss Policy
The president, he said, did not call a conference to talk over the strike situation with congressional leaders.

"No policy was talked about in the meeting," he said as far as the speaker and leader were concerned.

Administration leaders predicted the house would vote to investigate the sit-down strikes instead of joining the senate immediately in condemning them.

The investigation resolution was planned for mid-afternoon.

Rayburn said the senate declaration of policy, which included a denunciation of company unions and industrial espionage, probably would be sidetracked in the house labor committee for the time being.

The senate adopted it late yesterday, 75 to 3, after acrimonious debate.

Some house leaders were apathetic toward the projected inquiry, but said they had no intention of trying to stop it.

The self-styled house liberal bloc announced its opposition. Another group proposed bringing other kinds of strikes and company violations of the Wagner labor relations act in the range of the inquiry.

Favor Measure to Help Small Farms

House Committee Agrees
On 5-Year $695,000-
000 Program

Washington.—The house agriculture committee agreed today on a five-year $695,000,000 program to help low income farm classes.

Chairman Jones (D-Texas) said the committee would approve the plan formally this afternoon and dispatch it to the house.

The program followed general recommendations of President Roosevelt. Secretary Wallace and a special presidential committee on farm tenancy.

Features of the measure:
The secretary of agriculture would be authorized to lend $50,000,000 a year for five years to tenants for purchase of farms. Purchaser would be allowed up to 30 years to pay loans which would bear interest not to exceed 3 per cent.

The secretary would be authorized to lend $5,000,000 a year for five years to low-income farmers for purchase of livestock, machinery, equipment, supplies, family subsistence and for refinancing debts. These loans would be payable in five years and would bear interest not in excess of 3 per cent.

The secretary also would be authorized to inaugurate a land conservation and land utilization program for which he would have $70,000,000 for the next four years. This program would provide retirement of land unsuited for cultivation.

The measure eliminated an administration proposal that the secretary be permitted to purchase farms for resale to tenants on terms allowing them 45 years to pay.

LISTS 'BURDENS'

Chicago.—Paul E. Stark, of Madison, president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, in an address prepared last night before the Chicago Real Estate board said three unnecessary burdens were restricting home ownership and better housing for all income groups.

The burdens, he said, were an unfair tax, too much an interest rate and too short a period of amortization. He said "real estate at present pays about 60 per cent of the cost of government whereas it enjoys about 30 per cent of national income."

Insurgent Forces Within 18 Miles Of Basque Capital

Loyalist Troops Trying to Capture Franco
Army in South

(By the Associated Press)

Fighting behind a wall of fire, Spanish insurgent troops pressed their attack to within 18 miles of the Basque capital of Bilbao in northern Spain today.

Far to the south, on the Cordoba front, government militiamen hammered at insurgent entrenchments in Villaharta, trying to "bottle up" 15,000 troops of General Franco.

International tension over repeated attacks by insurgent ships on British war and merchant vessels apparently eased somewhat as insurgent authorities admitted they probably had made an "unfortunate mistake."

The admission came from insurgent officials at the Balearic island of Mallorca. The British destroyer Garland, and the cruiser Shropshire, backed up Britain's demand there for a quick and satisfactory explanation of two aerial attacks Tuesday on the destroyer Gallant.

Charges Almost Ignored
Accusations by the controlled Italian press of violation of the non-intervention agreement by France and Soviet Russia by dispatch of arms and men to Spain excited little interest in Paris.

French officials termed a charge that French army officers were helping to train Spanish government troops as a "counter-manoeuvre to offset the presence of Italians in Spain."

Insurgent troops opened the way to Bilbao by driving the last government defenders from Barazart near Durango. They forced Basque troops to withdraw to a second range of hills on one of the two principal highways between Victoria and Bilbao.

The insurgents set afire pine forests to drive back the defenders.

Insurgent planes fought off attacks by government planes and dropped pamphlets over the Basque country containing a "last warning" to surrender.

Senate Advances Bill For Office Building

Madison.—On a test vote the senate voiced approval today, 19 to 13, of constructing the second unit of the state office building here.

By that vote the house advanced past the amendment stage a bill calling for a loan of $500,000 in the next biennium from the state insurance fund for the state share of FWA building project. The proposed contract or tower unit of the office building would cost $1,500,000.

Senator E. M. Rowlands (D-Cambria), finance committee chairman and a member of the office building commission, said construction of the second unit would mean a saving of $120,000 annually in rentals for state departments.

Start Journey Over Steep Hills to Bring Plane Victims From Wreckage

McNary, Ariz.—Three of aspen limbs were fashioned today for eight charred bodies by aviators men who stood guard all night on the mountainside where a luxurious 21-passenger skyliner crashed into the snow and burned.

Underlakers began the task of loading the victims, two women and six men, on sleds and bringing them out—a tortuous seven-mile journey over steep hills, down snow-clogged ravines and across roaring streams which caused loss of a searching party of 40 to drop exhausted.

C. C. Cole, an official of the Douglas Aircraft corporation which built the plane, said the removal could not be completed before midnight and may require two days. The sight of twisted metal and death which greeted the searchers

Council Drops Plan to Widen Oneida Street

Property Owners Protest Proposal in Petition

BUY TWO TRUCKS
Board of Health Asked to Define Duties of City Physician

What Council Did:

Removed Oneida street from proposed paving and street widening program.

Referred suggestion to remove arterials from Oneida street to traffic regulations committee.

Referred listing detailed duties of city physician to board of health.

Purchased concrete mixer and two light trucks.

Approved mayor's reappointment of George Schmidt and Ruben W. Wallace to board of appeals for 3-year terms.

Oneida street was removed from the proposed PWA paving and street widening program by the common council last night after a petition of protest signed by a number of property owners along the street was read.

About 30 or more residents of the street attended the session and the council voted to strike the street from the list with little discussion. The petition pointed out that widening of the street would damage many trees that line the curbs and make a speedway of the thoroughfare on which three schools are located.

The suggestion of Alderman Vogt that traffic on the street could be slowed down by removing the arterials was referred to the traffic regulations committee for further study. Vogt also objected to large transportation trucks using just any street and asked that steps be taken to restrict them to certain streets which would not be damaged by their weight.

Will List Duties
Upon the suggestion of Mayor Goodland, the council asked the board of health to recommend a schedule outlining detailed duties of city physician. The mayor explained that although the council at

Demand Prosecution of 'People's Lobby' Group

St. Paul.—The "conservative" controlled senate today passed a resolution that Farmer-Labor Governor Elmer Benson prosecute members of the "People's Lobby" for their 15-hour "sit-down strike" in the senate chamber earlier this week.

Catching the "liberal" or minority backing the governor or guard, the sponsors of the resolution rushed the proposal through before the opponents could muster a protest.

The resolution severely criticized the governor as the "inspiration behind the people's lobby seizure of the chamber. It blamed the governor for the invasion and demanded that he "prosecute the invaders."

Chicago.—Governor Elmer A. Benson of Minnesota today characterized talk in the Minnesota senate of impeachment proceedings against him as "political bunk."

Pausing here on his way to Washington, he said he would not proceed with withdrawal of WPA funds. Governor Benson charged criticism of his actions in the "sit-down strike" in the senate was "merely something to bedevil the real issue, which is enactment of a tax bill to make the wealthy pay their full share of taxes."

Agreement Ends Strike At Stevens Point Job

Stevens Point.—A strike that virtually stopped construction of the $360,000 high school, a PWA project, was settled yesterday when contractors agreed to a closed shop and higher wages.

Local brothers Waterhouse, agreed to pay the union scale of 35 cents for unskilled laborers, 45 cents for carpenters and $1 for masons, bricklayers and plasterers. Wages before the strike started two weeks ago were 40 and 45 cents an hour for unskilled laborers and 65 and 70 cents for carpenters. No bricklayers had been employed.

Exonerates Principal Of Brutality Charges

Milwaukee.—Milton C. Potter, superintendent of Milwaukee schools, submitted a report to the school board today exonerating Principal Don P. Brudahl of foul treatment of school and faculty members of charges students were beaten.

William C. Kneel, assistant superintendent, was assigned recently to investigate the allegations which were contained in a letter and a petition filed with the board. The complaints charged brutality toward pupils and asked the board to remedy conditions.

The report said five parents who signed the petition denied authorship of the complaint and explained they signed after being "pestered" to do so.

The board voted to delay disposition of the report until its next meeting.

Assembly Gives Final O. K. to Labor Disputes Bill; Rejects Changes

Progressives of House Open Drive
For Budget Bill

Hope to Win Assembly
Passage Without Major Changes

Madison.—Progressives in the assembly, under the leadership of Speaker Paul Alfonsi and Finance Chairman E. J. Hoelsy, opened a drive today to push the $54,000,000 executive budget bill through the house without major changes.

Members of the sergeant's staff placed a table in front of the speaker's desk and around it sat Alfonsi, Hoelsy and Charles B. Perry of Wausau, a veteran Republican leader.

Piled up on the table were stacks of financial data and copies of 41 amendments, which will have to be disposed of before the bill can be brought to a vote.

Maurice Fitzsimons, Fond du Lac, served notice that house Democrats will concentrate their strength on eliminating from the measure the so-called self-balancing feature of conditional appropriations.

Although the recommended budget totals $54,000,000, nearly $19,000,000 will be paid out only if sufficient taxes are raised. The recommended appropriations exceed normal revenue estimates by that amount.

Fitzsimons charged if the bill is enacted in its present form local unit supported by state aid will receive only a "statutory promise" that might not be fulfilled.

The assembly worked for an hour on minor amendments today and recessed until 7:30 p. m.

The body of Rector has been taken to the Wichmann Funeral home, Appleton.

Three Killed in Auto Collision in Michigan

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.—Daniel Schantz, 45, Norman Kelly, 21, and George Johnson, 23, were killed last night in a head-on automobile collision as they rushed to a hospital where Schantz' wife is ill.

The crash occurred when the car carrying the three St. Ignace men went out of control on a curve eight miles north of St. Ignace and struck a light truck driven by Louis Birch, 55, a farmer.

Birch, critically injured, was taken to a St. Ignace hospital.

Sergeant Fred Keune of the state police said an inquest would be conducted.

Lindberghs in Seclusion After Landing at Munich

Manich.—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, temporarily dropping their self-imposed seclusion, took a short sight-seeing trip through Munich today with an American friend.

Except for the brief tour, the Lindberghs stayed in their hotel room. Special guards were posted outside to assure the fliers privacy.

The Lindberghs landed at Munich at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening from Zagreb, Yugoslavia. Their arrival was kept secret until late yesterday when a chance remark made by an airport attendant disclosed their presence.

Workers on Farm Think Transient Gedeon Murderer

Tell Kenosha County Sheriff He Resembles Robert Irwin

Kenosha.—Seven employees of a dairy farm near here told Sheriff Leo C. Schend today that a transient who worked on the farm Monday and Tuesday answered the description of Robert Irwin, young sculptor sought in connection with the slaying of Veronica Gedeon in New York on Easter Sunday.

The man, who said he was Clifford Percy of Washington, D. C., left the farm in haste yesterday morning after reading a Chicago newspaper account of the widespread hunt for the slayer. He drew his pay, asked how to get to Chicago without passing through Waukegan, Ill., and then went to the highway to hitch hike toward the Illinois metropolis.

The sheriff notified Chicago police the transient had headed toward that city. He also informed department of justice operatives.

Appeared at Tavern
The young man appeared in a tavern on Highway 42, south of Kenosha, late Sunday night. He was cold and wet. He told the bartender he possessed only a dime, refused a drink of liquor, and bought a candy bar.

Answering the transient's inquiry, the bartender said he knew of a job on the Goldberg horse and dairy farm in Pleasant Prairie township. The bartender telephoned the farm foreman, who came to the tavern and took the young man out to the job.

For two days he milked cows at breakfast yesterday morning, the new employee picked up a Chicago newspaper which printed a story of the search for Irwin. A waitress said that after he had looked at Irwin's picture, he shot a furtive glance around the table as if to see whether his companions were watching him.

The waitress said the transient then folded the paper, pushed back his chair and announced he was quitting.

Asked why, he said he suffered from tuberculosis and that the law prohibited persons so afflicted from handling milk.

The transient waited until 10 a. m. for his wages, then departed. He wore a pullover sweater brown checked trousers and tan shoes.

"We can't handle them now. How are you ever going to handle them under this bill? I note—I am not guessing—that they are going to take possession of those orchards, and no labor board in Madison can forbid the calling of any strike until the dispute is submitted to and acted upon by the labor board."

Badger Assembly Refuses to Vote Ban On Use of Bicycles During Night

Madison—(P)—Youngsters may continue to ride their bicycles at night without interference by state law.

The assembly disposed of an entire day's calendar in a one hour session last night and among the bills it killed was that proposed by Bernard B. Kroenke (D) Milwaukee, which would have prohibited the use of bicycles from one half hour after sunset to a half hour before sunrise.

The bill was defeated without debate.

The house also voted down two conservation committee measures. One authorized a $2 bounty on gray fox, which been accused of killing upland game birds. The other placed cats in the class of public nuisances when they stray into areas inhabited by protected animals and allowed hunters to kill them.

Proposals sent to the senate provide:

That blueberry pickers may use a comb or rake instead of picking wild berries by hand.

That property owners may use a fire lane for travel.

That summer resort areas where more than 50 per cent of the property is owned by non-residents, shall not come within the law allowing incorporation of villages.

The house concurred in a senate bill permitting dentists to use the title of doctor and sent to the governor a bill authorizing the Milwaukee county board to appoint election commissioners from lists submitted by the three dominant political parties.

Cheesemakers Not In Favor of State Quality Program

Against Paying Proposed Increases in Liscense Fees for Industry

Madison—(P)—Wisconsin cheesemakers were lined up against farmers today in opposition to a plan endorsed by the department of agriculture and markets to promote a quality dairy program through substantial increases in the state license fees paid by the cheese industry.

The cheese men told the assembly agriculture committee they were willing to increase present fees for makers from $1 to $2 a year and for factory operators from $2 to $5 but they did not believe any higher assessments were warranted.

The committee held hearings on three bills drawn up by the state department with the cooperation of the farmers joint legislative committee, representing the equity, farm holiday and milk pool groups.

Under these bills a cheesemaker would pay $5 a year, and a factory owner $10. All dealers in cheese, regardless of the type, would pay $10 a year. All dealers except those handling Swiss cheese are now exempt from license fees.

Seek Larger Force

The department proposes to expand its inspection force of 13 men with the yield from increased assessments, which Harry Kleuter, chief of the dairy and food division, estimated would amount to $31,000 a year.

After spokesmen for the Northern and Southern Cheese and Butter-makers' associations and the Wisconsin Cheese Publicity association had opposed the bills, one member of the assembly committee and a cheesemaker remarked that the measures had received little support from the industry itself.

"I represent 75,000 farmers," interjected Paul Weiss, of Barnum, member of the farmers' joint committee. "They are on record in favor of the bills. I hope these gentlemen do not still entertain the opinion that the cheesemakers represent the industry and that the farmers are not part of it."

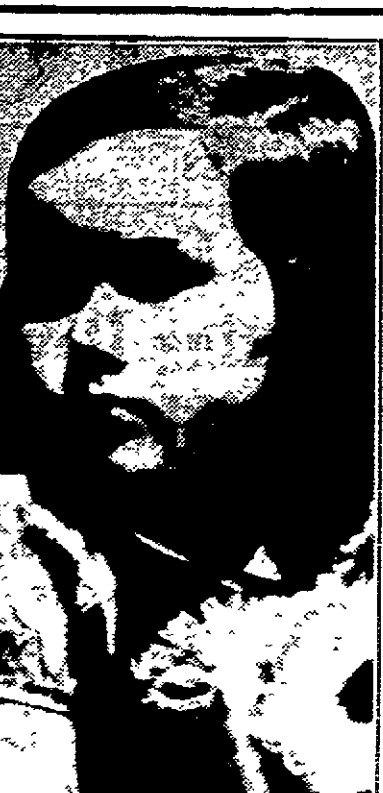

"Only One Faction"

"You only represent one faction of farmers," said Assemblyman William Rohan (D), Kaukauna. "Those who appeared registered no opposition to the bills, and proposed legislation. They endorsed increased inspection and the plan to require all manufacturers to be qualified for their jobs. Newly licensed makers would have to pass tests and show evidence of two years of apprenticeship."

The opposition united, however, against the original draft of a bill to license all cheese dealers and compel them to maintain suitable equipment.

They contended that a cheesemaker, who, for the benefit of the trade, sells types he does not produce would be classed as a dealer and that a $10 license would lessen cheese sales because many such makers would not pay the fee.

Agricultural Commissioner Fred Schultze said the bill could be amended to exempt cheese manufacturers selling to their local merchants.

Plan Rebuttal to Engineer's Data

Federal Witness Compares Prices of Telephone Supply Houses

Madison—(P)—Rebuttal to testimony of C. G. Hill, chief telephone engineer of the federal communications commission, was scheduled today in the circuit court trial of Wisconsin Telephone company appeals from three public service commission rate orders.

Officials of the Bell Telephone system were on call to present their side to Hill's contention that prices of independent telephone supply houses are lower than those of Western Electric, the Bell system manufacturing subsidiary. The Wisconsin company is a branch of the Bell system.

Hill, former chief engineer for the Wisconsin commission, completed testimony late yesterday on phases of the five-year study which precedes orders reducing the Wisconsin utility's depreciation rates an estimated $700,000, exchange subscribers rates an estimated $833,600 a year, and giving customers a $1,017,000 refund.

Judge A. C. Hoppmann overruled yesterday a company motion to strike out of the record testimony Hill had given on comparison of Western Electric and other telephone equipment manufacturers' prices.

Bill Will Revise Requirements for Women in Industry

Assembly Studies Plan Applying to Minimum Wages And Hours for Workers

Madison—(P)—A bill which would strengthen and revise the Wisconsin statutes applying to minimum wages and hours for minors and women in industry was introduced in the assembly yesterday by the committee on labor at the request of the industrial commission.

The bill was among 48 legislative proposals brought in before the entry deadline on all but finance committee bills went into effect today.

Assemblyman Ben Rubin (Prog.), Milwaukee, a member of the labor committee, explained the industrial commission had relaxed enforcement of the present law in view of the United States Supreme court's decisions holding other similar laws unconstitutional. The bill was introduced, however, when the supreme court recently upheld the state of Washington's minimum wage law for women.

Calls For Investigation

Assemblyman Andrew J. Biemiller (Prog.), Milwaukee, introduced a measure calling for an interim committee investigation of the cost of medical care for the public. The bill is a companion measure to another Biemiller introduced which would provide for incorporation of organizations to promulgate group hospitalization plans.

Dry communities would be prohibited from sharing in local governments' revenue in the state occupational taxes on liquor under a bill introduced by the committee on judiciary into the assembly.

The judiciary committee also introduced a bill which would permit counties by a majority vote of the county board to appropriate up to 2 per cent of state aid for highway repair and maintenance for traffic enforcement.

Licenses For Barber Shops

Assemblyman Harold Lytle (D), Green Bay, introduced a measure which would require separate licenses for barber shops from the state board of health in addition to the present barber license.

Reorganization of rural school districts on a county basis and an appropriation of $300,000 to aid such counties was contained in a bill sent to the assembly education committee by the Wisconsin Federation of Teachers.

Recent Statute Applies in Auto Industry Strikes

Federal Law of 1934 Gives Power to Intervene,
Lawrence Claims

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Poor old Dr. Townsend of old-age pension fame—all he did was to walk out on a committee of congressmen who had been brow-beating him with irrelevant questions and now unless judgment is reversed by the supreme court of the United States, he must go to jail.

Out in Michigan, however, thousands of persons in recent weeks have been refused to obey a court order demanding that they release immediately the property that didn't belong to them. Instead they retained possession for several days and caused tens of millions of dollars of economic loss to innocent persons, but now apparently those who committed "contempt" of court are to go free because certain safeguards of judicial authority have virtually gone with the wind in the state of Michigan.

The agreement just made settling the Chrysler strike provides definitely that both the automobile company and the union must withdraw their court suits growing out of the "sit down" strike. While this does not in any way relieve the courts of Michigan of their responsibility to secure respect for their orders, it does to a certain extent make it difficult for witnesses to be brought to testify as to the facts or for proceedings to be continued in contempt cases because both the union and the company have agreed in writing to drop all court action growing out of the strike.

Signed Under Duress

It might well be asked how public sympathy can justly be mobilized on the side of any automobile company again when two of the leading concerns in the industry formally drop proceedings against violators of law and trespassers. The answer presumably given by the companies is that they had to sign the agreements as the only means of getting their plants reopened—a sort of duress upon them from which the companies no doubt felt unable to escape.

The state courts themselves, however, are under no such duress and if Michigan courts do not obtain protection, then a federal statute in force since 1871 requires the president of the United States to secure it for injured citizens. As a result of this law, wholly unrelated to the question of issue today, was declared invalid in 1883, but the rest of the law has remained in effect and is part of the war department's literature for commanding officers published in 1922.

Some observers have said that section 5298 of 1871 which is still in force and is intended to carry out the mandate of the federal constitution guaranteeing a republican form of government was adopted too long ago to be applicable. While this is no excuse for non-enforcement, the fact is there is a later federal statute which gives the federal government power to intervene in "sit down" strikes and the law in question was not only passed by a democratic congress but it was signed by President Roosevelt himself on June 18, 1934.

Applies to Seizure

"Section 2—Any person who, in connection with or in relation to any act in any way or in any degree affecting trade or commerce or any commodity moving or about to move in trade or commerce—

"(A) Obtains or attempts to obtain, by the use of or attempt to use, or threat to use force, violence, or coercion, the payment of money or other valuable consideration, or the purchase or rental of property, or protective services, not including, however, the payment of wages by a bona fide employer to a bona fide employee; or—

"(B) Obtains the property of another, with his consent, induced by wrongful use of force or fear, or under color of official right; or—

"(C) Commits or threatens to commit an act of physical violence or physical injury to a person or property in furtherance of a plan or purpose to violate sections (A) or (B); or

Prison, Fine, or Both

"(D) Conspires or acts concerted with any other person or persons to commit any of the foregoing acts; shall, upon conviction thereof be guilty of a felony and shall be punished by imprisonment from one to ten years or by a fine of $10,000 or both.

"Section 3—As used in this act, the term 'wrongful' means in violation of the criminal laws of the United States or of any state or territory."

It will be noted that the federal power specifically refers here to violation of state laws. This is not novel because the supreme court of the United States has already upheld anti-trust laws and other federal statutes aimed at persons who make combinations which tend to violate state laws.

The above quoted law applies, of course, to "sit down" strikes in several particulars. First, it speaks of attempts to obtain by coercion "valuable considerations" and while it specifically excludes wage payments it will be noted that in both the General Motors and the Chrysler strikes the principal issue was a demand for recognition of a union as the "sole bargaining agency"—a right deemed so valuable a consideration by a labor organization as to cause its leaders to order men to seize property and virtually hold it for ransom.

Must Be Legal

But there is another important paragraph at the end of the same statute quoted above and it reads as follows:

"Section 6.—Any person charged with violating this act may be prosecuted in any district in which any part of the offense has been committed by him or by his actual associates participating with him in the offense or by his fellow conspirators; provided, that no court of the United States shall construe or apply any of the provisions of this act in such manner as to impair, diminish, or in any manner affect the rights of bona fide labor organizations in lawfully carrying out the legitimate objects thereof, as such rights are expressed in existing statutes of the United States."

Now nowhere in the statutes of the United States is the seizure of property by a labor union justified or validated. As for the phrase "in lawfully carrying out the legitimate objects" of a labor union, no court of law has ever considered it lawful for a labor union to seize property of an employer. Nor have the court decisions generally throughout the United States permitted labor unions to carry out their "legitimate objects" in anything but a lawful manner.

Questions Method

What is a "lawful" manner? The statute quoted above says the right to strike is not to be impaired or diminished when labor unions are engaged "in lawfully carrying out their legitimate objects." The object—recognition of a labor union as an exclusive bargaining agency—is, of course, legitimate but is seizure of property and use of coercion a lawful method of "carrying out the legitimate objects" of a labor organization?

The federal government is now prosecuting some leaders of miners unions in Illinois who are accused of acts of seizure of the property of various companies but the leaders happen to be at the head of a union against which John Lewis is fighting. So the department of justice cooperates with him in applying the statute for his benefit in Illinois.

but does not apply it to the disadvantages of the Lewis unions in Michigan.

This is "equal justice under law" flouted and a federal statute enforced only when political allies of an administration and campaign contributors insist upon it. But apart from one-sided enforcement the existence of the 1934 and 1871 statutes prove there is little justification for the outcry that the president and the attorney general of the United States lack power to secure protection for property in Michigan or to punish persons who conspire anywhere in the United States to violate state laws governing property or to indict persons who participate in concerted action to ignore or defy the actual orders of a court of justice.

Turns Bull Loose In Barn To Put End To Sit-Down Strike

Ithaca, N. Y. — A Tompkins county farmer told, on condition his name would not be disclosed, this story of how he broke up a sit-down strike of his farmhands by turning a bull loose in the dairy barn.

"The boys (the two hired hands on his small farm) have been reading so much about these sit-down strikes, they kinda thought they'd put one over on me the other night."

"We'd brought in the cows and had them in their stalls, ready for the milking, when the boys just plunked themselves down on their stools and declared a sit-down strike for a raise in pay."

"The good thing is you can't squeeze blood from a stone but words wouldn't move 'em."

"Then I happened to think of Neb, loafing in his box stall. That bull is so mean we don't dare take him out without clamping a lead pole in his nose ring."

"I just opened the stall door and turned him loose."

"There was nothing to it; before you could say Jack Robinson there wasn't a sit-down striker within 100 yards of the dairy barn."

Arraign Shiocton Man On Fishing Law Charges

With the consent of arresting wardens, the fines were remitted on payment of costs.

Buyer was accused of having possession of snag lines and snag hooks and of having used a snag line.

Assembly Gives Final Approval To Disputes Bill

get up there in time to save the fruit trees."

The bill establishes majority rule to determine who shall represent the workers of any plant or industry for collective bargaining where a dispute over representation arises.

Speaking on the amendment to forbid strikes until disputes are placed before the board, Assemblyman Maurice Fitzsimmons (D), Fond du Lac, called upon Sigman, who is an A. F. of L. organizer, and Assemblyman Emil Costello (P), Kenosha, a C. I. O. organizer, to state their intentions.

"Are you going to call strikes regardless, or do you want this board to function?" Fitzsimmons asked.

"It would be ridiculous to assume," Sigman replied, "that after we had asked for this bill, we do not intend to abide by it."

Fitzsimmons then put the question to Costello, who replied:

"The C. I. O. endorsed this measure as it came from the senate, without amendment. We do not organize for disputes, we organize for better working conditions."

Forbids Company Unions

Still intact in the bill is the only major change, made in the senate, and that with the approval of the administration. It definitely forbids company-dominated unions and allows the labor board to set up two committees, one representing employers, another representing workers, whose duties it will be to "put their respective houses in order" and prevent labor troubles before they assume serious proportions.

The assembly roll call on concurrent passage in the assembly labor disputes bill follows:

Believe Killer Made Death Mask of Veronica Gedeon

New York—To the extravagant details of an Easter triple murder in a Beekman hill apartment, police added today the weird and ghastly possibility that the killer of Veronica Gedeon paused long enough to press plaster upon her features for a death mask.

As Pennsylvania authorities checked the chance that a sculptor-suspect, Robert Irwin, had been seen hitch-hiking near Stroudsburg, Alexander Ertl, art supply dealer and Irwin's former employer, said indications pointed to such a mask having been made.

Ertl, an expert in the business, explained the making of masks is routine work of apprentice art students. Police scheduled another conference with him today in an effort to obtain additional clues to the identity of the man who slew "Ronnie," her mother, Mary, and Frank Byrnes, a roomer.

Police said grains of plaster and a dirty washcloth had been found in the Gedeon apartment; a bit of adhesive plaster was stuck to Ronnie's neck, and a box of salt was left in the room Irwin vacated last week.

Ertl attached this possible significance to the finds: the washcloth contained soap such as is used by artists to prevent plaster of Paris from sticking to the skin; tape often is used to pin back the hair in making masks, and salt makes plaster harden quickly.

John A. Lyons, in charge of the police detective division, announced he had been advised a man resembling Irwin was seen hitch-hiking near Stroudsburg Tuesday. He quoted a traveling salesman as saying he gave a man resembling Irwin a lift between Dingmans Ferry and the outskirts of Stroudsburg.

clared that "we have no intention of quitting at Hershey."

A mass meeting of sit-down strikers more than a score of whom were beaten and cut in the fighting, was called for 2 p. m. tomorrow at nearby Palmyra.

Governor Earle, who criticized Sheriff William W. Caldwell for not calling for state police yesterday, ordered an investigation.

Caldwell said he would reply to the governor later.

More than a score of deputies patrolled the ivy-covered out-plant as the workers returned today. They were assisted by members of the American Legion.

State police were withdrawn.

Await Inquiry

Russell Behman, president of the Hershey local of the United Chocolate Workers' union, said his organization would make no plans until the state's investigation was completed.

Major Lynn G. Adams, superintendent of the state police, said none of the ringleaders was found last night, but that he would go to Hershey to direct the investigation.

It Is Said--

That one Harry O'Day, 56, who started 20-day term at the county detention camp today for drunkenness apparently felt a little low this morning. When taken from his cell at the police station, O'Day was asked his name by the desk sergeant.

"O'Day," he responded. "But the way I feel right now it ought to be 'oocoo night!'"

Commission Acts For Revision of Freight Charges

Orders Inquiry on Coal Rates Between Wisconsin Points

Madison—P.—The public service commission ordered a general investigation today for the purpose of making the first general revision of coal freight rates between Wisconsin points in effect since 1922.

"One of the major issues in the general rate revision is whether the port equalization principle shall be abandoned," the commission said.

"Under this principle freight rates on coal from Lake Michigan ports, Milwaukee to Green Bay, inclusive, are the same to Wisconsin points more than 40 miles away. When points receiving coal from both Lake Superior ports are involved, the freight rates are equalized to such points from ports on both lakes."

"Since coal is an important raw material in generation of electricity and manufacture of cooking gas, coal freight rates have a direct effect upon costs and rates of electric and gas companies serving the public," the commission said.

"Numerous complaints with respect to existing rates indicate general dissatisfaction and have thrown considerable doubt as to the reasonableness of the rate structure," the commission added. A hearing date will be set later.

Temporary Cut

The commission, meanwhile, authorized temporary reduction of the Green Bay and Western railroad's carrying charge on bituminous fine coal between Green Bay and Biran, Stevens Point and Wisconsin Rapids to $1.25 a ton. Present rates are $1.34 to Stevens Point and $1.41 to Biran and Wisconsin Rapids.

It refused to vacate its July 25, 1935, order suspending proposed increase in bituminous lump and fine coal freight rates from Lake Michigan docks to Fox river valley points by the North Western, Milwaukee and Soo Line railroads.

The Green Bay and Western, the commission said, will abandon passenger and express service at the end of this week and confine itself to freight service.

Around 60 new stamps from trouble-torn Spain have reached New York collectors and dealers within recent weeks.

They represent both sides in the civil war. In some instances the prime purpose of their issuance not been established as far as American catalogers are concerned. They are being classified as "tentative listings" until further information is available.

Doubtless some of these stamps have been in use for considerable time, but due to wartime difficulties have been delayed in reaching this country.

Quite a number of the new stamps are simply overprints on previous issues. Others are special printings with new designs. It is difficult to learn the exact source of some of the stamps. For the most part, however, the government issues include new designs, some of which apparently were prepared weeks or even months before reaching this country.

Among the latest is one intended for charity. Across the top runs the inscription "Carity Association." In the center are the Spanish words for "Obligatory Postage Stamp," with "Viva Espana" and 5 centavos at the bottom. The stamp is bi-colored, with red triangles in the upper right and lower left corners, and a yellow band diagonally crossing the center.

Another, stating it is for the city of Cadiz, bears the municipal coat-of-arms and "Viva Espana." The face value is 5 centavos. The design, in red, is placed against a light yellow background. This same design, in black or red, has been overprinted on 10 values of the government issues of 1931-33.

A number of the Spanish issues are for various provinces. One for Novelda, 25-c printed in red, has a five-pointed star framing an upraised fist in the center. Another, of 5 c denomination shows a raised fist and arm. It is for Caravaca, in black on red and inscribed "International Red Aid."

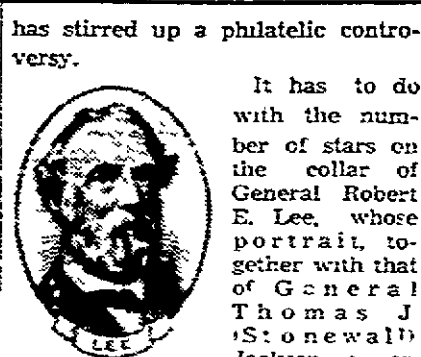

General Lee's Stars. Latest addition to the U. S. army-navy series, the 4-cent gray blue, has stirred up a philatelic controversy.

It has to do with the number of stars on the collar of General Robert E. Lee, whose portrait, together with that of General J. Stonewall Jackson, is on the army stamp Lee commanded the Confederate forces in the Civil war.

Collectors point out that only two stars indicating a lieutenant-colonel, shine on the Lee collar instead of the three which mark a general's neckband. The post of five claims the third star is really there, though hidden by the back of the collar.

The navy stamp pictures Admirals Sampson, Dewey and Schley. The gray blue is a definite change from the long standard brown for a 4-cent denomination.

OUR FATHERS, THE RIVERS

Emil Ludwig, the great German biographer, is one of the first authors to write of the paths of destiny which great rivers hew in the histories of nations. In his recent book, "The Nile," he treats one of the greatest and most ancient of rivers as he has treated the lives of great men in the annals of nations before.

The Nile becomes under his hand a greater being even than Bismarck, Goethe, Hindenberg, Lincoln or Napoleon, men whose lives Ludwig has previously treated. For the Nile is timeless as well as almost endless, and as it flows today through its long course it chants a story thousands of years old.

The Nile has determined the course of history in this ancient land of Egypt. Its shores were the focal point for one of the first centers of civilization, the Nile valley and the valley of the Tigris and Euphrates being recognized as the two birthplaces of communal life among men.

For centuries the Nile has provided the only means of sustenance, the only means of communication for this land that is otherwise mere desert. No rain ever falls in most of Egypt; there is only the water of the Nile. So man came to depend wholly on the Nile, and depending on the river he feared its vagaries, its periodic floods and droughts; the Nile and the sun, they were his only gods.

Only in the last century did man conquer this ancient river. Englishmen came, and with their characteristic doggedness they built a great dam at Aswan. This dam was the father of other dams and canals, until today the Nile has been put to man's uses to irrigate the surrounding valley. Because the annual flood brings with it not only water but a most fertile silt from the mountains, the Nile valley has now become very valuable land, and this hidden wealth has brought exploiters from all over the globe.

Egypt has been conquered by almost every great European and West Asian power. Arabs, Persians, Greeks, Romans, Turks, finally the French and then the English, they have all gone to Egypt looking for gold, if not the metal itself at least riches in the form of taxes and valuable products which the Nile and its fellahin produce. Egypt has been the battleground of the ages, probably because the Egyptians themselves usually welcomed rather than tried to repulse the invaders.

Egypt is still exploited under the English. Ludwig says. Ancient Egyptian crops like wheat, clover and corn were uncultivated so that cotton could be planted. And now the Egyptians, instead of being slaves of the Pharaohs, are slaves to the cotton industry. This author points out that the freeing of the slaves in America only served to increase the slavery of the Egyptian fellahin, for it was during the American Civil war that cotton growing got its start in Egypt.

Yet the Nile, conquered by dams and canals, is still the father of all Egypt; in fact it is even more the father.

The river has caused constant strife among the tribes of Egypt and the lands of the Upper Nile, the Sudan, Abyssinia, and Ethiopia. In the late Italian campaign in Ethiopia, the Nile became a source of international friction between Italy and England, and when D. Duce's forces threatened to invade a territory surrounding one of the sources of the Nile, Lake Tana, it brought a quick and sharp rebuke from London.

Through it is took one comes to realize what rivers mean to other nations. The Ganges in India, the Amazon in Brazil, the Rhine in Germany, the Danube in Austria, the Thames in England. Countless images of the Ganges as a sacred river; the Blue Danube, praise of which makes any Viennese purr; the old refrain of the Rhine, "they shall not pass, they shall not cross the Rhine."

We think of "Old Man River" in our own country, the part the Mississippi, the Father of Waters, has played in the development of America. The frontier it provided during our early life, the vista that was opened up beyond. The transportation it afforded, its part in the growth of the American cotton fields, negroes working on the levee.

We think of our own Fox, the entrance to this great territory in the times of the French voyageurs, the founding of present prosperous cities along its banks, as it pours its wealthy waters into Green bay.

How much of the prosperity of our own growing city can we attribute to this river?

"Old Man River, that Old Man River, he keeps on rolling, he just keeps rolling, Old Man River, he just keeps rollin' along."

This Negro chant seems as though it had come up from the ages, sung by all peoples in all countries.

STATIC TEXTILES

Do we have all the clothing we need, or all we'd like to have? The question is suggested by a statement of Harold L. Butler, director of the International Labor Office at Geneva, who has been in Washington attending an international textile conference.

One of the chief aims of the conference is to find ways to expand the world markets for textiles. In spite of a great increase in productivity, Mr. Butler says, the per capita consumption of textile goods has remained static in the last twenty-five years.

Style changes are numerous in a quarter of a century. In women's clothes they have ranged from ground-touching to knee-length skirts, from huge hats and flowing auto veils to tiny berets. Many more women buy bathing suits in a season nowadays than bought them 25 years ago, but the yarn required to make one 1912 bathing outfit probably would make two or three of this year's swim suits. A lady's costume used to weigh pounds; now it often weighs ounces.

Aside from controlling the styles, which it could hardly manage, how can the textile conference solve this problem of increasing the per capita consumption of its goods? Prices and incomes that made it possible for more people to have more clothes might turn the trick, but those details are only partly in the power of the textile industry.

GRASS ON THE RANGE

A federal Department of Agriculture man who has been looking over Kansas lately, reports that he "saw more droth-ridden range than he ever thought existed." He began to doubt whether even the most conservative grazing could save the soil in such a drouth. And then, right in the center of a very bad area, he found a ranch where the forage was 50 per cent better than elsewhere.

He stopped and asked the owner why that should be. The owner reckoned that it was because he used thirty-seven and a half acres per cow, while his neighbors had been using only eight to twelve acres per cow.

And did it pay him right along? Well, he never got rich at it, he admitted. In good seasons his neighbors made a lot of money and he made a little. But in bad seasons his neighbors went broke, and he still made a little.

Evidently it is still possible to make a living on the plains.

SELLING SCRAP

"Scrap Exports Menace America," says an announcement made last week in connection with a meeting of steel men. The foreign demand for scrap steel has greatly increased. The average yearly exportation for 10 years ending in 1933 was only 300,000 tons. But last year it rose to nearly 2,000,000 tons, and this year it is expected to reach 3,000,000.

The scrap is used mostly for armament manufacture and goes mostly to Great Britain, Italy and Japan. Many American exporters think this trade should be strictly controlled, so as to keep most of the scrap at home. A licensing measure, for this purpose, has been introduced in congress.

Ordinarily such an aim would be accomplished naturally by paying a better price at home than the foreigners pay, if we need the stuff more. Our consumers, public or private, could really have the scrap for less than the foreigners pay, because the latter has to pay the freight.

Opinions Of Others

BEATING OLD AGE
 Dr. Irving Cutler, of Northwestern university, thinks that old age can be beaten by the development of a hobby. This is not a new idea, but it is an interesting one, and may be effective where it can be applied. The doctor says that "the crowning glory is to grow old gracefully." It is, and, alas, it is not always easy to do. Perhaps the greatest burden that comes with age, in addition to the lessening of strength and endurance, is the decrease of initiative and energy, and these declines tend to make both the selection and pursuit of a hobby more difficult. Happy the person who grows into old age with a hobby of continuing interest.

"Old age," says Dr. Cutler, "is as natural as growth and development." Undoubtedly it is, but it is far from impossible to find an appropriate interest in something other than the workaday business of making a living. Perhaps at middle age began to think about such a thing, it would be easy, but middle age seldom does, so old age must do the best it can with conditions as it finds them and the tools it is able to wield. Hobbies may be very expensive or they may not be, but if they achieve the result the doctor foresees they are worth all they cost—to those who can afford them. No one likes to grow old, but no one, if life continues, can avoid doing so. There is nothing more cheering than a graceful acceptance of the inevitable, and if that inevitable can be made interesting in the way Dr. Cutler suggests, the cheer will be all the greater.

At any rate, it would seem to be worth while for those who reach three score—or, even better, before that time—to give thought to some pleasant occupation that is within the limit of their purse and capacity that will make them feel that they are still no small part of the world after the world has given strong hints that they are no longer able to keep up with its speed, or, as it is often vulgarly described, "stand the gaffe."—Indianapolis News.

APPLETON POST-CRESCENT

SOME of our senators and congressmen are, it is admitted, not such geniuses along any given lines with the questionable exception of being very dandy ditto marks for Franklin the First . . . a fine example came the other day, however, when James Truslow Adams was being questioned by the senate judiciary committee about the president's court packing bill . . . Mr. Adams, who has supported Roosevelt and is styled as a liberal, is downright scared of the bill as tending toward dictatorship . . . anyway, Mr. Adams is one of the best-known of historians, and is perhaps the number one American historian today . . . as such, he should be extremely familiar to our senators who, after all, should have an intimate knowledge of American history . . . I admit to knowing little about Mr. Adams except for his reputation, but I should want to know a great deal about what he has written if I were representing a lot of citizens . . . at any rate, U. S. Senator Dietrich of Illinois, one of the senate's best rubber stamps, knew nothing about the nation's most eminent American historian, even by reputation, and he cross-examined Mr. Adams as though the gentleman was a subordinate clerk from the New Hampshire legislature . . . maybe Huey Long and Marion Zioncheck weren't such dopes after all . . .

To add to that, another Roosevelt rubber stamp, Senator Minton from Indiana, wrote a letter to General Arthur St. Clair of Indianapolis, in care of the D.A.R. chapter in that city. It seemed that the senator wanted to defend his support of the court packing proposal, and he did, after a fashion, in his letter.

All of which is very well, if he wants to, except that a letter to Abraham Lincoln would have been approximately sixty years more timely.

It seems that General St. Clair was a revolutionary war hero, that he was the first governor of the Northwest territory, and that he was president of the continental congress.

I expect any day to hear of another one of the stamps asking who in hell was Washington.

I'll say this for Bob LaFollette, even though he may not be all that his father was and though I don't care for a lot of things he has done: he at least isn't displaying ignorance to the extent of embarrassing the folks back home.

As we understand it, his employer is a man's worst enemy, and the agitator and the politician his only friends.

These earthquake shocks we have been feeling may just be the founders of the Republic turning over.

A Verse for Today

VIOLETS

In the shady corner
 Of a rail fence,
 Spring hid her violets
 Long, long ago.
 Patiently I hunted,
 Groping in the dense
 Grasses in the shadows
 Where those blossoms grow.

Now my heart is shaded
 By the long years . . .
 Hidden in a corner
 Where skies are blue
 As those shared together.
 I can find through tears
 Violets still dewy
 With my thoughts of you!

ISN'T THERE ANY OTHER PLACE TO SETTLE THEIR FAMILY QUARREL?

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

THEY TAKE A LOT OF REGULATING

In the mail today comes a neat little package containing a vest pocket casket marked "Physician's Sample," tho it is evidently designed for the physician to look at merely, for on opening the casket one finds nestled within a dozen beautiful pills—but they are securely sealed within a cellophane cell and no hatcher or blasting powder to enable one to get at them. Baffled and moderately nettled one turns the casket over, idly wondering whether there is some trick about getting at the contents, and there on the back, boldly and unblushingly, is printed the formula and the dose. One begins to understand why the pills are so difficult to get at. They might not be safe for invalids or children. Each pill contains one-fourth grain of aloin, 1-80th grain of strychnine, 1-12th grain of belladonna, 1-15th grain of ipecac and, in case all this doesn't start something, a good dash of phenolphthalein. The dose is from one pill (for a human being) to three pills (probably for a team of mules).

Practically the same formula, with endless but unimportant variations, is used for the manufacture of laxative tablets, physic pills, bowel regulators, stomach and liver activators, system cleaners and intestinal evacuants galore. That a medicine manufacturer whose primary depends largely on the good will of physicians has the cheek to order physicians to "concoct like this" is humiliating. It presupposes a pretty low order of intelligence on the part of physicians.

Even if we grant that aloin or aloin, good house medicine, is suitable for man, by what weird reasoning is the strychnine incorporated in the pill? Strychnine is a stimulant to the spinal cord and the motor nerves—enough of it will produce convulsions. Some old timer whose knowledge of the effects of medicines was crude, conceived the simple fancy that a dash of strychnine along with a dose of horse medicine might prevent the "depressing after-effect on the intestines." If that is the purpose, then in all fairness the strychnine should be given, not along with the physic, but perhaps eight to twelve hours later, when the victim is suffering from the after-effect. Aloin requires that length of time to produce its effect; strychnine produces its effect within an hour and the effect is all over some hours before the aloin can act. The same objection applies to the incorporation of belladonna (atropine) in such a concoction. Belladonna or its active principle atropine is a depressant to the spinal cord and motor nerves, an antispasmodic, and it was added to the horse medicine of the old timer to prevent griping. If that is the purpose, the belladonna should be administered six or eight hours after the aloin, for belladonna acts promptly and its action is over within three hours after it is absorbed. Another effect of belladonna which is not so desirable is temporary drying up or decrease of the secretions. Besides, the strychnine tends to increase griping—it is all a queer mess, and the medical profession should be ashamed of it.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Colitis

Please give further information concerning the irradiated yeast tablets your correspondent told about—curing her colitis of long standing. I too suffer from chronic colitis. 651 inches tall, weight 125 lbs, 32 years old. (Mrs. T. P.) Answer: It will take at least 20 to 30 tablets of irradiated yeast three times a day for a few months—that is, from six to eighteen tablets daily. Not ordinary dried brewers yeast, which contains only vitamins B and G, but irradiated yeast—irradiated with ultraviolet light, which changes ergosterol in yeast into vitamin D. (Copyright, 1937)

Your Birthday

"ARIES"

If April 9 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 2:45 to 4:45 p. m. from 3:45 to 5:45 p. m. and from 7:45 to 9:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 6:45 to 8:45 a. m. from 5:45 to 7:45 p. m. and from 9:45 to 11:45 p. m. Failure to keep promises will be responsible for many of this day's discordant conditions, and the primary cause of most of its quarrels. You must avoid taking a narrow-minded viewpoint about any social or domestic arrangement requiring your ultimate decision. Be careful that in anger you say nothing that might be construed as derogatory to someone's character, for trouble is liable to originate from this source. Reading, haste, or failure to look where you are going, are dangers that require precautions to be taken, to prevent their resulting in accidents this day. You may have the opportunity to take the lead in some social activity, and it might be good judgment if you do so. Low-pitched voices possibly will be more effective in controlling situations than loud or shrill tones, so it will be wise to keep your modulated. Married and engaged couples, as well as those whom Cupid is trying to unite, will make a serious mistake this day to assume in any way a theatrical mannerism in either speech or carriage.

If a woman and April 9 is your birthday, you have, most likely, a lively imagination, a witty tongue and a quick temper. Your popularity can be enhanced by keeping the latter under control. Your social graces ought to prove to be one of your most valuable assets. It might be well to cultivate the habit of planning your daily activities before you start upon them. Be systematic if you wish to escape making many mistakes for many people born on this date are seriously handicapped by doing things in a haphazard fashion. Avoid appearing to be strait-laced or very reserved. As a short story writer, actress, interior decorator, musician or artist you ought to be able to achieve success without much of a struggle. Your matrimonial dreams are apt to be realized.

The child born on April 9 probably upon reaching its majority, will embark upon a career that will make it a distinguished member of society. This youngster perhaps will be offered an exceptional number of brilliant opportunities.

If a man and April 9 is your birthday, if you make wise use of your talents nothing can prevent your ambitions from being realized. As an educator, lecturer, preacher, actor, physician, lawyer or author you may win a marvelous reputation.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York — Today I went prospecting for a real story but came back with only a lot of small talk.

Do you mind? Eleanor Goodrich is Walter Hampden's niece, and they have these things in common: both deaf, neither can remain away from the theater. . . . Peggy Sears' idea of a satisfactory confectio is a saucer containing three large scoops of peach ice cream. . . . Morton Rowe says he's studied voice under 39 teachers, but he may be kidding. . . . He used to be the fastest typewriter in the world. There's the nucleus of a fine pet shop on Broadway if one wanted to go electrical engineering. . . . collect them. . . . There's a duck, a dog, two kittens, and a horse. . . . However, a grocery store would be more practical. . . . Think of the hams and the sour grapes you could get.

Helen Gleason reports finding a back driver who takes his little four-year-old daughter around with him all day. Her mother works, so she has to spend her time with papa. . . . However, papa always asks the customer if he minds. He's never yet found one who does.

The thing that impresses you about Billy Rose is his leaping wit, and utter absorption in his work. . . . Ed Wynne has worn the same pair of shoes 35 years—but only while going through his act. He never puts them on without first throwing dirt at them. . . . Not that he's superstitious; he just thinks something awful will happen to him if he doesn't.

Gracie Allen confesses she first met George Burns back stage in a Hoboken theater while visiting there. . . . "Which is reason enough," she says, "why nobody should ever go to Hoboken." . . . For some inexplicable reason, that song the old "Florrie" is set to sing keeps running through my mind. . . . I never saw the original sextet, but another one was introduced way back in 1920, in "Tell Me, Pretty Maiden" and it included Dama (there's an odd name) Sykes, Dorothy Leeds, Fay Evelyn, Marial Lodge, Beatrice Swanson and Marcella Swanson.

The only one of these girls I've seen since then was Marcella, walking down Broadway one night about six years ago. . . . Add Cornelianna: A scarlet Darwin tulip has been named for Katharine Cornell. . . . Furthermore, she's building a new summer cottage on an island off the New England coast. . . . There's a society in New York composed only of child actors, and Claire Howard, a tot of seven, is its president. . . . She's the little girl who plays with Miss Cornell in "The Wingless Victory." . . . Oh, yes, the name of this society is The Lumkins.

If there's a word assiduously avoided by writers of radio copy, it's "risks." . . . Even when read by the most meticulous actors it

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington — From Nebraska comes a story of how pleased the legislators are about their new one-house legislature and it was vastly consoling to that astute gentleman who made it possible by forcing through a state constitutional amendment—Senator Norris.

Norris believed the legislature war far to big and cumbersome with its scores of members divided in two houses and it is with added pleasure that he has noted several other states watching the Nebraska experiment in hopes they can do likewise.

But the nearest trick in the arrangement seems to be the least publicity. Norris, who bossed the whole affair, had it written in the constitutional amendment that the legislature never should exceed 50 members nor fall below 20. As a matter of fact he thought 30 was not a bad size for a legislature and accepted the top of 50 only to stem the opposition.

Ready listeners can be found in Washington to talk of a plan of trimming the size of the national house and senate but they listen only because they think the idea is funny, if not fantastic.

Senator Norris himself says it is silly even to talk of it—since it would be impossible to get either the house or the senate to propose such an amendment, much less to get the states to accept it.

Almost overlooked in the court fight is the effect the proposed legislation would have upon the membership of lesser courts. Some time ago this column noted that while President Roosevelt had found no opportunity of naming new members to the Supreme court he had named about the usual quota to the circuit and district courts. In the first term he named 40 District judges. There are 157 in the country. He also named 14 Circuit judges of which there are 30.

Normally in his second term he should name 40 or 50 more to District and Circuit courts. In addition, if the proposed legislation passes, he will be authorized to supply up to 50 more young judges to sit with the elders in various courts who decline to resign at 70.

That startling letter by Chief Justice Hughes lent new weight to strong convictions here that should the President's legislation pass, the six 70-plus judges would resign almost in a body.

In his letter, which had the concurrence of Justices Brandeis (liberal) and Van Devanter (conservative) Hughes said it was his belief that increasing the size of the court would decrease its efficiency. By resigning they could prevent any increase.

Democrats Planning For Jefferson Fete

Sherwood — Frank Wickham, president of the Young Democrats Clubs of America, announced recently that he had secured the appointment of George Roosevelt of Hilbert as chairman of the Jefferson Day Democratic celebration for Calumet county. These functions, commemorating the anniversary of the birth of Thomas Jefferson, are being held simultaneously in every section of the country on April 13.

Chairman Roosevelt and a committee of Young Democrats appointed by him, will have entire charge of organizing the affairs throughout the country.

The event will be celebrated by the Young Democrats of Calumet county with a social get-together at Hotel Thomas at Forest Junction on Tuesday evening, April 13. Committees in charge are: Misses Marie Elbert and Margaret Schaefer, publicity; Andrew Olander and Claude Thomas, refreshments; Eugene Becker and George J. Rossmeyer, general. Assemblyman Henry Huplauf will be the main speaker.

Miss Dollie Zick returned Monday evening from the General hospital at Madison where she was a patient the last week of her life.

The event will be given by the married women of Sacred Heart church on Sunday evening, April 11, at Diedrick's hall here.

Mr. and Mrs. August Stienhagen, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Thiel and daughter Alice, Appleton, and Mr. and Mrs. George Mader and family visited Sunday afternoon at the Anton Emmer residence.

Raymond Kees, celebrated his eighth birthday anniversary on Saturday with his mother entertaining the following at a 4 o'clock supper: Joseph Dietrich, Jeanette Elrich, Marie Mandersheid and Marvin Kees. Bingo and other games were played.

The 4-H club will hold its monthly meeting next Wednesday evening, April 7, at Speed's hall here. Henry Mertens suffered an injury of his right hand at the Menominee Sugar Beet factory, Green Bay, last Thursday and was taken to St. Elizabeth hospital on Saturday morning for treatment.

FARM LAND TAXES

Washington — (U)—A small rise in the average taxes on farm lands in 1936 is reported by the agriculture department in a preliminary survey of 38 states.

The department reports the national average tax on an acre of farm land at 37 cents in 1934-35 compared with the peak of 58 cents in 1929. Taxes per $100 of land value averaged $1.14 in 1935, $1.19 in 1934, $1.00 the peak year of 1932, and 55 cents in 1913.

has a rasping sibilance. . . . Then there's the actress, a very good actress, who has this justifiable complaint. . . . she's so tiny she can never hope for leading parts. Such a silly pity!

Art of Color Etching Is Described in Address Before University Women

AN ART so little known in the United States that he could find no schools that taught it and no American books that explained it was described by Leon Pescherec of Whitewater, America's No. 1 color etcher, at a meeting of the Appleton branch of the American Association of University Women Wednesday night at the home of Mrs. Elmer Jennings, 1124 E. North street.

Many persons in the United States make color etchings from two, three or four plates, but Pescherec, it is believed, is the only American who does one-plate color etching to any extent. He learned the craft in Europe after foreigners who visited his etching booth in the Belgian village at the Century of Progress exposition expressed to him their surprise that they had been unable to find color etchings of American scenes.

Not a secret.

If Pescherec is our only color etcher of national reputation today, it is not because he has kept the process a secret. He described it to his listeners last night and told them that patience was the only qualification they needed.

To understand color etching one must first know how black and white etchings are made. Mr. Pescherec said. Of the latter, he said, there are three kinds—the ordinary etching, the dry-point and the aquatint.

The making of an ordinary etching, he explained briefly, begins with the thorough cleaning of a sheet of copper. Then one levels the edges of the copper sheet so that they will not be so sharp that they cut the paper when the print is made. The next step is to coat the plate with a ground made of beeswax and asphaltum. This accomplished, the etcher takes his needle and scratches the drawing, scratching hard enough only to cut through the wax. The plate is then submerged in acid, which produces the etches on the copper. After the surface of the plate has been cleared with benzine, ink is rubbed into the lines and the print is made.

Should Christian Fight? Is Theme of Discussion

The discussion on the topic, "Should a Christian Fight?" which was begun at the meeting of the Friendly Fellows forum last Friday night will be continued at 7:30 tomorrow evening at Salvation Army temple. Adjutant Len Burridge will continue to lead the discussion this week.

Society Member

A member of the Chicago Society of Etchers, Pescherec studied color etching under Roger Hebbelink etcher to the court of Belgium, after he became interested in the work at the Century of Progress exposition. It was somewhat of a blow to the women of this paper manufacturing region to hear Mr. Pescherec say that he had to buy all his materials, including his paper, in Europe, because none made in this country was fine enough.

"I buy my paper from a little factory near Paris," he said, "a factory that is satisfied to make 500 sheets of paper a month. But it is the finest paper I have ever seen. We haven't time to do that in the United States."

He explained that there was a huge difference between color etchings and colored etchings. The latter, he said, are printed in monochrome and then colored afterward by water color, oil or ink.

Must Be Lovely

"They may be lovely," he admitted, "but they have no intrinsic value because they are no pure craft."

He then went on to explain in some detail how he had gone about making color etching of an old New Orleans courtyard. He never makes an etching of a place he has not seen himself and sketched. After he had made a sketch of the courtyard, he returned to his studio and made a more careful drawing of it on tracing paper—using the thin paper so that he could see what it looked like in reverse. He made several pencil drawings of the place, emphasizing different details and experimenting with colors, before he began the actual work of etching. He had brought with him both the original sketch and the finished color etching to show to his audience.

Shows Etchings

He also showed a number of other of his etchings, including scenes in Belgium and England and five color etchings of American scenes. These were a section of the Smoky mountains in Tennessee, with a cabin in the foreground, a ship-building

Story of Elijah Is Basis Of Mendelssohn Oratorio

ONE of the most colorful stories recorded in the Old Testament is that of Elijah and his zealous endeavor to overthrow the pagan priests of Baal in order that he might restore the worship of Jehovah to the kingdom of Israel. The story is crowded with incidents that lend themselves to the dramatic musical setting provided by Mendelssohn in his famous oratorio which is to be performed by the Schola Cantorum at Lawrence Memorial chapel Sunday evening, April 18.

When the oratorio opens, Elijah appears before the dissolute court of Ahab, the king, and pronounces the course of the drought upon the Israelites who have forsaken their God to follow the idolatrous worship of Baal. The overture, which follows the curse is expressive of the misery of the people crushed under the double calamity of drought and famine and culminates in their prayer, the powerful and finely written chorus, "Help, Lord."

When three years have passed the prophet appears again at Ahab's court and announces the close of the drought. "Art Thou Elijah, he that troubleth Israel?" they ask in fierce dislike, and he forcibly reminds them that it was their own sins that brought calamity to Israel. With great authority he summons the prophets of Baal to meet him at Mount Carmel and there to put it to the test who is the true Lord.

Nothing in the whole drama is more effective than the scene in which Elijah challenges the priests of Baal to call down fire from heaven to consume their offering.

After many futile petitions to their god, the priests finally leap upon the alters in mad frenzy and cut themselves with knives. But Elijah calls upon the Lord, and the fire descends from heaven to consume his offering. He has proven who is the true God and the people fall in terror to the ground. The first part of the oratorio closes with the picturesque scene in which Elijah calls for rain and the drought is broken.

Part II is concerned largely with Elijah's sorrow because the people have forgotten God again and his great experience in coming into the presence of God at Mount Horeb. Finally Elijah, his work on earth accomplished, ascends to heaven in a chariot of fire carried on the wings of a whirlwind and the most original.

After many futile petitions to their god, the priests finally leap upon the alters in mad frenzy and cut themselves with knives. But Elijah calls upon the Lord, and the fire descends from heaven to consume his offering. He has proven who is the true God and the people fall in terror to the ground. The first part of the oratorio closes with the picturesque scene in which Elijah calls for rain and the drought is broken.

Part II is concerned largely with Elijah's sorrow because the people have forgotten God again and his great experience in coming into the presence of God at Mount Horeb. Finally Elijah, his work on earth accomplished, ascends to heaven in a chariot of fire carried on the wings of a whirlwind and the most original.

COLD STORAGE SAFE AND DEPENDABLE

PROTECT YOUR FURS

from MOths HEAT FIRE THEFT

Years of acceptance of cold storage, as providing protection for furs, is testimony to the safety and dependability of this method. Proponents of the cold storage system contend that heat and not moth damage is the greatest potential danger to the life of furs. Heat, it is claimed, causes the loss of essential oils, stealing the beauty and lustre of the furs, leaving them devalued and dull from the oxidation and fading of dyes.

The weakness of fumigation, they hold, is that it does not prevent re-infestation.

Old Wall-Paper Designs On Display at College

ONE of the most unusual art exhibits of the season at Lawrence college is the exhibition of old wall-paper designs which has just been opened at the library, and which will continue until April 25. Many of the prints, typified by striking color, have been reproduced from papers found in well-known landmarks in New York, Connecticut, Massachusetts and New Hampshire, and reflect the stately surroundings of famous old drawing rooms.

Among the most interesting is a copy of a French wall-paper found in the Theodore Roosevelt house in New York. It dates from about 1800. Another, from the Elbridge Gerry house in Marblehead, dates from about 1780.

Other famous homes containing papers represented in the exhibition are the Livingston manor, Catskill, N. Y.; the Dorothy Quincy house, Quincy, Mass.; and Colonel Pope's home, from which two papers have been copied.

An example of hand-blocked print, known as the Salem and Portland paper, came from the Longfellow house, and a French rococo design in the group. An old house at Boxford, Mass., yielded a pattern known as "Colonial Gothic."

The exhibition includes a number of scenic papers; Watteau designs; an amusing paper from California about 1850, depicting a locomotive and stage coach of the times. The collection comes to Lawrence through the courtesy of Blanche A. Byerly, New York City, owner.

Sirutz, Mrs. Frank Smith and Mrs. Joseph Doerfler at schafkopf. Mrs. E. S. Torrey and Mrs. B. C. Wolter, 620 E. Franklin street, entertained at a luncheon Wednesday at their home for the Social Union church, captured by Miss Ethel Nutt and Mrs. J. Bon Davis. Forty-five persons attended. After the luncheon Mrs. Herbert L. Davis read the scene between the griffin and the mock turtle from "Alice in Wonderland," and Mrs. Carl J. Waterman and Mrs. H. L. Krieger gave a short musical program.

Mrs. Waterman's numbers were "In Sweet Content" by Sanderson, and old Mexican folk song by La Forge, and Mrs. Krieger sang "When I Have Sung My Song" by Ernest Charles and "Summer Time" from "Peggy and Bess" by Gershwin. The two sang a duet, "Go, Pretty Rose."

Four members of Mrs. F. J. Grist's group of 15 of Appleton Women's club will give a dessert-bridge Friday afternoon at Mrs. Grist's home, 24 Winona court, as a means of helping to raise the group's quota for the club budget. Others on the committee with Mrs. Grist are Mrs. R. L. Swanson, Mrs. S. F. Darling and Mrs. J. H. Kutz. Four tables will be in play.

The last costume party of the season for American League and auxiliary will be held at 8 o'clock Friday night at Elk hall. Prizes will be awarded for the best, funniest and most original costumes and the entertainment will be informal.

The entertainment committee in charge of the party includes Mrs. and Mrs. Louis McNein, co-chairmen; Mrs. and Mrs. Ed Lutz; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Buss and Mrs. Alfred Schabo.

Lady Elks entertained 33 tables of cards at an open party Wednesday night at Elk hall. Prizes at contract bridge were won by Mrs. A. A. Grizmacher, Mrs. E. A. Killoren and William Gessner at pivot auction by Mrs. Ivan Stone and Mrs. J. When in Best Contract Never Bid Other Suits

BY ELY CULBERTSON

The trouble with many players bidding is that they attempt to paint the lily. In other words, when it should be obvious that they are in the best contract, they "investigate" another suit. They fail to realize that partner will not know that they are conducting a mere investigation and may draw quite a different inference from their bid. North's bidding in today's hand is typical of the foolish explorer.

North, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH

The bidding:
North East South West
1 club Pass 1 heart Pass
2 spade Pass 3 spade Pass
4 hearts Pass

North's first bid was correct under the preparedness principle. Starting with a club would permit a rebid at the one level. Over South's response of one heart North correctly showed this spade suit but, when South confirmed this suit by means of a jump, North should not have looked for greener fields. He knew that South knew the spade suit to be only four long, since it was shown secondarily, and South, therefore, would not offer such strong support on less than four trumps. That being true, why should North seek a better contract than spades? If North had felt that his hand was not strong enough to play for ten tricks and had decided to investigate no trump possibilities by answering three spades with three no trump, he could not be criticized, but the fact that he engaged for ten tricks with his four heart bid robs him of any claim to a rebid. Certainly, he could not be an improvement on spades, even if South held a five card heart suit. When the four heart bid got back to South the latter could read it in only one of two possible ways: First, that it was a slam-try or, second, that North's spade bid had been psychic and that, despite South's double raise, he was unwilling to play at a spade contract. Whichever of these was North's reason, South correctly decided to pass. He already had shaded in his values slightly and was not interested in the slam and, secondly, if North's spade bid were psychic it would be fatal to return to four spades.

As the four heart contract, South soon lost control of the hand. On the diamond queen opening South had need for so many entries to control the trump suit, ruff a diamond and establish the spade suit, that not only was he forced to guess the heart finesse wrong but, due to the 4-2 split, soon found himself with fewer trumps than had East. It was not to his discredit, therefore, that he went down three tricks.

With spades as trump, North would have had no difficulty and would have either made game or gone down one, depending on how he guessed the heart queen.

TODAY'S QUESTION
Question: In using the two-way three bid is a response to an opening bid considered forcing?
Answer: Yes for one round, if the response is "less than game."

Question: Neither side was vulnerable. West, my partner, opened the bidding with three no trump. North overcalled with four diamonds. I held ♠ A 9 8 7 6 5 2 ♥ none ♦ none ♣ J 2 8 7 6 4 3. What should I have done?
Answer: A four spade bid is the least of many evils with this terrific freak. A slam may depend only on how much of partner's advertised strength is in your suits, but a slam try by you, with no high cards, would be just a shot in the dark.

Old Gardener Says:

BY E. I. FARRINGTON

Margolds seem to be the flower of the year and there are a number of new varieties which recommend themselves. There is even one that has foliage which is entirely odorless, and will therefore appeal to those persons who dislike the typical margold scent. In addition it has handsome flowers, which are golden orange in color. The petals are arranged in corollate fashion, and it has been appropriately named Crown of Gold. Harmony is a margold of the French type which was one of the outstanding novelties of 1936. It produces an abundance of mahogany red and golden orange blossoms on a symmetrical plant from July until frost. Yellow Supreme is a striking giant, yellow variety. Its flowers are not rivalled in size and beauty, but it blooms very late and is often cut down by frost before it reaches its height of bloom. Guinea Gold is another excellent margold of recent introduction.

My Neighbor Says—

Before planting dahlias tubers drive stakes into the ground. If this is done the roots will not be injured.

Water spots may easily be removed from washable crepe dress if inside of dress hem is rubbed over spots.

Be sure the water is at boiling point before putting vegetables in it to boil. If it is cold or lukewarm the freshness and flavor will soak into the water.

Baked potatoes if broken as soon as taken from the oven to let out steam will not be soggy when served.

Five Great Rivers of Europe

IV—THE SEINE

Not quite 35 years ago, two Americans—an author and an artist—reached the city of Havre aboard an ocean vessel. Across the sea they had brought a machine which they wanted to use for touring in France.

ing what a fine little automobile he had, he later said, "It traveled so well that we were able to pass over the top of a hill at the flying speed of 12 miles an hour."

Today thousands of motor cars pass along the roads on either side of the Seine, enroute from Havre, the seaport, to Paris, the capital. The motorists go through Normandy, one of the fairest parts of France. All about them in spring of summer they may see crops growing in the valley, which is blessed with rich soil. Many other persons travel up and down the Seine aboard steamers.

The most famous part of the Seine is that which runs through Paris. Broad streets and fine public parks extend along the banks in some sections of the city. The grounds of the Louvre stretch for half a mile along the river. The Louvre at one time was part of the French king's palace, but now it is a museum and art gallery, visited daily by people from many countries.

An island in the river is known as the Ile de la Cite, and this island was settled more than 2,000 years ago by a tribe of Gauls known as "Parisii." While the Romans held power over France, the settlement was called Lutetia, but later the name was changed to Paris. In memory of the Parisii, the most famous church in France, the cathedral of Notre Dame. It was finished about 600 years ago, after men had labored on it for a century and a half. Strange-looking animal figures decorate upper parts of the cathedral, and are known as "gargoyles."

(For Travel section of your scrap-book.)

View of Paris and the Seine—from the top of Notre Dame

It was an automobile, not a common kind of machine in those days. There was some worry as to how to get it off the vessel, but this problem was settled when half a dozen sturdy sailors picked it up and carried it down the gangplank. The weight was about 1,200 pounds, far less than that of a modern automobile.

Before being given a license, the author was put through tests. He went around a corner and barely missed striking a flock of sheep. A few moments later, he put on the brakes with all force, and stopped just in time to miss running into a flock of geese.

Thus proving his skill, the American was given his license, and drove forth to make a dream come true, to drive along the beautiful valley of the Seine river. In tell-

Restless Child in Teens Gives Parents Anxiety

BY ANGELO PATRI

Restless children in their teens, boys and girls alike, give their fathers and mothers an anxious time. They do so much that is silly and wrong, according to adult standards, and what is to be done? They have passed the time when adult's standards can be applied. They refuse to be children and they cannot be adults. They insist upon behaving like children, but they court adult responsibilities they cannot meet. No wonder their parents are sick and worried and unhappy.

One young man of nineteen says he wants to go to college, but he does as little studying as possible to get by. He says he has no particular aim in going to college, just wants to go to say he has been. He goes out at night and drinks a bit with a young man who has too much money and not enough to do. What are his people to do?

It seems to me that when a young man gets into such a rut as this going along a set line that must end in trouble. The best thing to do with him is to take him out of his present place and set him somewhere else, so that he can form new associations. Sometimes there are relatives or friends at a distance who can help in such situations. Families have been known to swap problems like these for the time of their duration. The thing to do is to break the spell that the child is under—the sooner the better.

Then there is the young girl in her early teens. Too young to go out to dances with young men, too old to be content with childish things. She wants evening gowns, makeup, dances. She cannot have them. She fusses and weeps and bewails her hard lot, her cruel parents. She envies the girls whose parents have given up the struggle and yielded to the clamor of the fledgling. What is to be done with her?

State the situation calmly. After all she is going to live for about

Reader Tells How to Keep Smooth Skin

BY ELSIE PIERCE

HERE is a letter so full of beauty wisdom that I give it to you, almost in its entirety. It is signed P. L. to whom I owe a sincere vote of thanks.

"Miss Pierce—My dear lady: A short time ago you wrote, and I quote: 'I have yet to receive a letter saying: my skin is lovely, altogether normal and I'd like to keep it that way.'"

"I believe we few who have a skin like this already know how to keep it and we leave your column alone for those who do cry for help. I have taken care of my skin since the age of fourteen; never used cheap make-up, neither did I use rouge until I was twenty. I believe most enlarged pores are caused from the kind of very cheap rouge that comes in a large box, used heavily and left on for more than one day because the 'sweet young thing' thinks she did a good job of smearing her face and doesn't like to take it off for fear she can't get the same effect again. Maybe you're wondering why I'm writing you about these things when you already know them, so I'll tell you. When I was fourteen years old I bought myself three kinds of face cream: day, night and cleansing cream and also some very good powder. These along with soap and water were used every day. Why so much cream for a girl of fourteen? I was raised on a cattle ranch in the south, out of doors a lot. I'm not pretty: have a pug nose, straw hair and a faint pink showing now, and then on my skin, so I didn't want a cowboy leather skin to go along with that."

"My sisters laughed at me for using all these beauty preparations—I being so young. I am thirty-one now. Most people think I am eighteen or twenty. I have a son almost eleven and people who don't know us very well think he is my brother."

I have printed this letter because it is so simple and direct and because there must be many young girls living on a ranch in the south and working outdoors a good deal who, like today's contributor don't want 'cowboy' leather skin." In such a case cream is quite right, even for a fourteen-year old. I agree that the beauty treatments did their good work. Else the elements would have done theirs and a good deal of drying it would have been.

If you wish my bulletin on the Dry Skin—please send self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope for it. Address Miss Pierce in care of the Appleton Post-Crescent.

Wives Shouldn't Forget Attention to Husbands

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—I desire to be a good wife to my husband. How can I be a companion to him and keep him interested and amused? I greatly appreciate your advice.

ILENE

DOROTHY DIX

There is no more follow-this-rule-and-you-cannot-fail recipe for being a companionable wife than there is for making a sponge cake. It is something that should grow naturally out of the relationship of husband and wife, since they have so many common interests in their struggle to make a fortune, their children and their home.

Unfortunately this is not always the case. Often the very things that should bind them together separate them. The man becomes so absorbed in his business that he lives in a different world from his wife's. She gets so wrapped up in the children that she has no time for her husband or interest in his hopes and plans. And so he goes his way and she goes hers until they become such strangers that they haven't even anything to say to each other.

All human relationships perish if they are neglected, so if you want to be chums with your husband you must be willing to make the effort, and take the trouble to cultivate his society. And begin to do this just as soon as you are married. Half the battle is getting off to a running start.

Before you were married you listened to him by the hour when he talked about himself, his automobile, his business; reminisced about his youth and his college days and whatever other topics were dear to his heart. Don't, as soon as you are married, yawn in his face and tell him that you have heard all of that a thousand times. Lend him an ear and give him a glad hand. What every man really marries for is to get a claque.

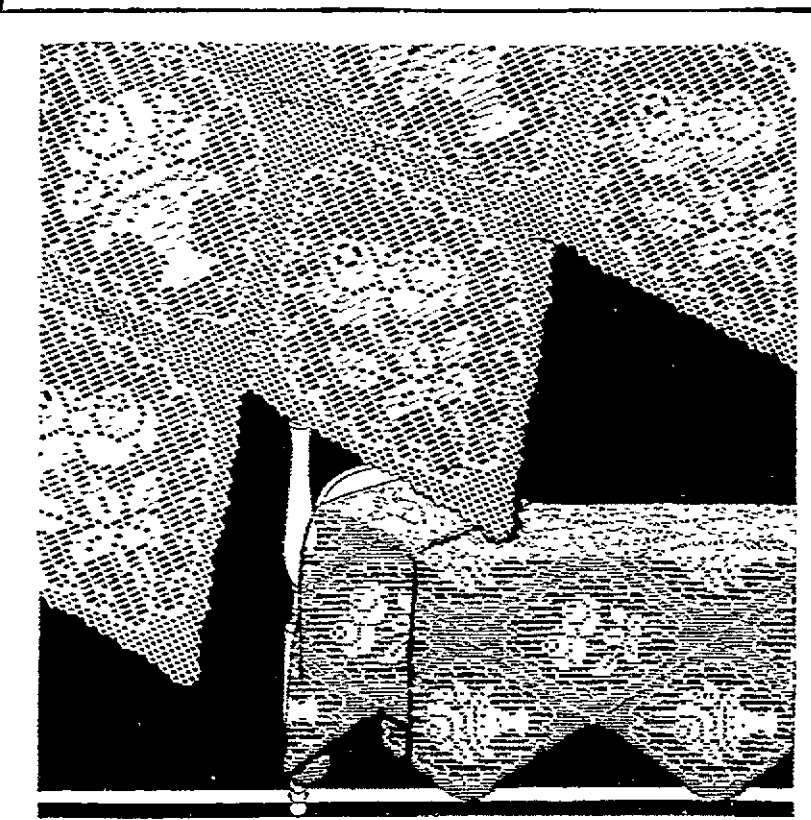

Many a woman shuts the door of her husband's confidences when she looks bored when he tells her something about his business, or when she interrupts his pet story to say: "Look how cute the kitten is acting."

If you want your husband to be interested in the things that interest him, you must enjoy doing the things he does. You must be willing to grab your hat and go when he wants to step out, or spend the evening cheerfully at home when he is tired and wants to sit by the fire.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

TAKE WEIGHT OFF TIRED FEET
Lose Fat The Easy Way—Without Starvation Diets, or Back-Breaking, Bending and Rolling Exercises.
If your feet and ankles feel tired and ache all over—because you are carrying too much weight—do this simple treatment that has helped millions to reduce excess weight.
There's a reason why so many people find dieting slow and often times futile in reducing. The reason, doctors say, is often because of a little gland in your neck. All the blood in your body goes through this tiny gland sixteen times every day. If it doesn't pour into the blood stream about one and one-half drops of vital fluid every 24 hours, many people take on ugly fat. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People help Nature to "burn up" excess food and fatty tissue in much the same way as a good "draft" acts in a furnace.
Now, physicians combat this condition by feeding the gland the substance it lacks—and millions of pounds of excess fat has been wiped out in this way.
Marmola's Fat-Burning Tablets are based on the same method used by doctors. So don't waste your time or money striving to reduce with starvation diets or back-breaking exercises. Start the Marmola treatment today that millions have used successfully to get rid of excess fat! The formula is in every box so you know just what you are taking. Don't wait—get a box of Marmola today from your druggist.

Legion Announces Fight Program for April 22

175 Pound Golden
Gloves Champs in
The Feature BoutContest Will Show Frank
Duket Against Nick
Lubovich

THE CARD
Frank Duket, Marinette, versus Nick Lubovich, Milwaukee, five rounds at 175 pounds.
George Steffen, Lena, versus Joe Repischak, Milwaukee, five rounds at 155 pounds.
Bruce Ferro, Oshkosh, versus Lauron Chesley, St. Norbert college, three rounds at 125 pounds.
Tony Gaudes, Milwaukee, versus Don Loonsfoot, Green Bay, three rounds at 118 pounds.
Marty Bridges, Lawrence college, versus Al Ulrich, St. Norbert college, three rounds at 100 pounds.
Gene Conlon, Kaukauna, versus George "Zeke" Zeng, Green Bay, three rounds at 118 pounds.
Charles Gerlach, Menasha, versus Eddie "Yankee" Kizior, Pulaski, three rounds at 175 pounds.

A BOXING card that will feature a pretty fair group of well-known boxers from the Fox river valley area has been arranged by Oney Johnson post of the American Legion for its April 22 show at Armory G. The card will be the last this season, the legion has announced, and is being held after about six weeks' inactivity.

The final bout of the evening will bring together Frank Duket, 175-pound golden gloves champion of Green Bay, and Nick Lubovich, the 175-pound champion of Milwaukee, in a five round contest.

A year ago or more Duket and Lubovich clashed with Duket losing the decision, although you can't convince Frank that he wasn't a winner. As a result he is eager to battle the Milwaukee fighter and he plans to give him a shellacking that will leave no doubt as to the winner.

The other five-rounder will show George Steffen a favorite here, against Joe Repischak, Milwaukee. They are 155 pounders. Everyone knows that Steffen can fight and likes to trade leather. His opponent will be a chap who compares with him physically but who hasn't the experience. However, he's considered to be a real corner and recently dropped a highly unfavorable decision to Buck Kramer at Sheboygan.

Repischak formerly lived at Sauk Ste. Marie, Mich., and has fought some of the best boys in the upper peninsula.

Seven bouts will feature the evening's card with the first going on at 8:30. Tickets are to be on sale at the usual places.

Taxis in two games and Heinie's taverns rapped out three victories over the Lutz Ice company to drop the Taxis and Ices into a tie for first place. The triple victory gave Heinie's bowlers third place in the standings.

F. Kross started the Lutz upset when he cracked a 223 game and 631 series along with F. Schiltz 217 game and 617 count and gave the Heinie squad a triple win. High scores for the Ices were A. Y. M. C. A. VOLLEYBALL SQUAD ENTERED IN STATE TOURNAMENT

Appleton Y. M. C. A. will enter two teams entered in Class B, and the men with comparatively little experience showing in Class C. Reports this morning were that more than 25 teams had entered the various divisions of the tournament. Volleyball has staged a comeback in Appleton this winter after a dull period extending over several years, and appears headed back to the era when Appleton had some of the best teams in Wisconsin. Members of the association squad, shown in the picture are, standing, left to right, Art Schade, Edward Krause, Carl Koletzke, Eugene Mullen, Percy Menning and the

Chandler Has
Cage SuggestionWould Let Team Decline
Free Throw on Intentional Foul

Milwaukee (P)—A new basketball rule which allows players, purposely fouled in the heat of play, the opposition seeks any means to gain possession of the ball, to decline the penalty, is being advocated by Coach Bill Chandler of Marquette University. The change already has been approved by the National Basketball Coaches association, but awaits adoption by the national rules committee.

Chandler pointed out that it has become "smart" for the team lagging by one point late in the game to foul an opponent intentionally in the hope that the free throw will be missed, and that the lagging team may gain possession of the ball previously "frozen" by the team in the lead. This maneuver gives the losing five an opportunity to tie or win, said Chandler.

"This strategy is to be deplored," the Marquette coach said. "My proposal, which our association has adopted and which probably will become a rule next year, gives the man who is fouled the choice of taking the free throw or declining the penalty. If he declines the penalty, his team will get the ball out of bounds."

Chandler also is strongly in favor of eliminating the center jump, as voted by the coaches' association. "I'll have a six foot 10 inch center at Marquette next year," he said, "but I still think that the team which happens to boost a tall tip-off man has an unfair advantage."

Chandler is first vice-president of the Coaches' association.

Sam Sneed Leading at Trail's End Golf Meet

Charleston, S. C.—G. Sam Sneed, dark-haired youngster who learned to play golf in the hayfields of Virginia, was the target today of golf's salaried players in the trail's end tournament of the winter campaign.

The 25-year-old, long-knocking kid from White Sulphur Springs gave his fellow professionals a lesson in golf yesterday when he walked home in 67, four under par, to lead the field on the first lap of the 72-hole $5,000 tournament of gardens.

His margin was one stroke over two veterans, Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., a former home club professional, and Hawthorne Harry Cooper. In addition to Sneed, Picard and Cooper, the sub-par ranks included young Ben Loving of Richmond, Va.; Johnny Revola of Chicago, Leonard Dodson of Springfield, Mo., and Leo Walper of Washington, D. C.

George Kreick Named Ripon Cage Captain

Letters were awarded to Kreick: Radtke; Ralph Penik, Milwaukee; Harry Mathos, Fond du Lac; Roland Horky, Tomahawk; Dayle Sallett, Augusta; Art Fallon and Carl Lytle, both of Ripon.

Claim Chet Laabs Longest
Hitter in Baseball Today

BY EDDIE BRIETZ
NEW YORK (P)—Dana N. Bible, U. of Texas coach, is taking bows for lassoing Bert (Tarzan) Seiman, triple threat back from Houston. This bird does the 100-yard dash in 9.9 and stars in basketball as well as football. Chet Laabs, Detroit's prize rookie, has wrists as large as the average man's arms. They say he can hit a ball farther than any other man in baseball. Which may be one reason Mickey Cochrane didn't mind taking a $50,000 loss on Al Simmons. Bing Crosby now pitches for Clemson college and they claim to have discovered another Joe Humphreys in young J. M. (Blondie) Bennett, who does the right announcing for Louisiana State.

Al Weill, manager of Lou Ambers, put the blast on fight commissioner Bill Brown for the decision on the Montanez-Ambers scrap Monday night. "It was pure moider," Weill told the commissioner. "Eddie (Choo Choo) Johnson, son of the old Big Train collected five out of six for Maryland against Virginia the other day and was robbed of a sixth by a sensational catch. New York was hockey mad Tuesday night. Addicts cheerfully forked out 11 potatoes for $5.30 tickets for the Ranger-Detroit playoff game, and no questions asked. Georgetown 31; Western Maryland 0. Is this the baseball or football season?"

Best line of the week in our book was penned by Jimmy Doyle in the Cleveland Plain Dealer: "They are reserving a niche in the baseball hall of fame at Cooperstown, N. Y., for the first Giant to get a hit off Bob Feller." Line troubles appear ended at Tulane. Coach Red Dawson had two, one as good as the other in spring practice. K. K. Cuyler, who fractured a cheek bone last week, will be back in the Red lineup in ten days. Gabby Hartnett, Rip Collins, and Larry French of the Cubs are among the provinces with the "crack" they go with the ball in "pepper" games.

John Henry Lewis is getting so big he may grow right out of the light heavyweight title. Now weighs 185 and is getting no smaller rapidly. May be good for one more title defense at 175 (if they make it snappy) before he'll have to hang out his shingle as a full fledged heavyweight. Manager Gus Greenlee can't find a challenger with enough box office appeal. Al McCoy of Boston would do, but he's way overweight, too, and might not be able to make 175 and still be strong.

Niagara High Coach Going to Columbus

Schneider, who won letters in football and baseball at the University of Wisconsin is a native of Schenfield, Wis.

Kenosha Enters
State Ball Loop

Circuit Approves Schedule: Will Operate With Four Teams

Milwaukee (P)—Kenosha joined the Wisconsin State Baseball league at a meeting here last night at which officials approved a schedule for the first half of the 1937 season and adopted an official ball. E. M. Cardell, manager of the Kenosha Simmons team, accepted a franchise bringing the league membership to four teams. The other members are Madison, Sheboygan and Racine.

The teams swing into action May 9 with Madison playing Sheboygan there and Kenosha meeting Racine there.

League directors chosen include: Eddie Lenahan, Madison; O. A. Kroos, Sheboygan; John Tomek, Racine; and Cardell.

Marquette to Honor Its Sports Squads

Milwaukee (P)—Marquette University's first "all-sports" dinner will be held tonight with the athletic board entertaining members of the varsity and freshman football, basketball and track squads at the Milwaukee Athletic club.

The 1936 gridiron dinner was postponed until now because of the cotton bowl trip and the change in head coaches. It was decided, as a result, to hold the basketball and track banquets at the same time.

Letter and numeral winners in football and basketball will be announced and captains elected. Spring football practice continued at a lively pace yesterday after a lesson in fundamentals. Coach Paddy Driscoll sent four teams and a number of alternates through a long signal drill.

State Softballers Will Gather Sunday

Milwaukee (P)—Managers of the Badger State Softball league teams will discuss arrangements plans Sunday at their first meeting of the season here. Managers of last year's teams expected to be present are: Sophus Nelson, Kenosha; George Dringer, Shorewood; Tom Greenleaf, Wauwatosa; Duane Bowman, Madison; Ned Warner, Janesville; Vern Leweller, Green Bay; Clarence Fell, Beloit; Jack Rulle, Racine; Lee Saubert, Waukesha; W. A. Schuman, Watertown; Eddie Steward, Appleton; and Jack Carver, Oshkosh. Cy Johnson of Madison is president, Carver, vice president, and Jim Webb of Kenosha, secretary-treasurer.

L. E. Barlement of the Zuehlke Buffet team and J. Tornow of the Schabo Coals took up in a duel for high individual honors Tuesday night at the Arcade alleys when the City league rolled. The two keglers compiled 669 series counts with Barlement showing a 254 for top game of the evening. Barlement compiled his series on scores of 254, 215, 200 while Tornow showed 222, 212, 235.

The circuit's race became hotter this week when the Koester Sodas, leading the loop, dropped three to the Schabo Coals. J. Tornow's scores for the Coals were the principal reason for the Soda losses. C. Tornow rolled a 200 and 565 and H. Radtke a 205 for the Sodas.

Zuehlke Buffets won three from the Tri-City Motors to move into a second place tie, two games behind the leaders. Barlement's scores paced the Buffers and Currie helped with a 200 game. For the Motors, Gabbert rolled a 201 and 216 and a 577 series and Leseleyoung a 201 and 203.

Bohl and Maeser, the other second place team, won two from the Forster Tavern. Don Hinn, developed a 205 and 243 and a 520 for the Bohls. L. Zick showed the best count for the Forsters, a 206 and 239 and a 663 series, while E. Horn also had a 230 game.

Jenss Clothiers won two from the Balliet Insurance team. A. Gehring had a 206 and 573 and N. Bewley a 208 for the Clothiers. Kranzner showed a 220 for the Balliet.

GONZAGA bowlers topped two games from Stanford as the Elks Western league closed its schedule last night on the Elks alleys. E. Cooney hit a 163 game and 482 series and J. Horne a 161 game and 471 series to top the leaders' scores, while J. Rechner turned in a 520 series to share Stanford scoring honors with E. Earl who spilled a 199 game.

Utah took second place in league standings as a result of the two Stanford losses and its own triple victory over St. Mary's. C. Hartung topped a 199 game and 561 series as he rolled the Utah squad to three wins over the squad of St. Mary's bowlers led by Rothchild with a 195 game and 509 series.

Tipping a 204 game and 538 series, Perschbacher led the Idaho squad into a 3-way tie for third place. The Idaho bowlers took the Santa Clara team into camp in three games. M. Harnes' 187 game and 513 series topped the Santa Clara scoring.

Honkamp cracked out scores of 223 and 698 pins as he led the California scoring, but his mates failed to follow suit and dropped two games to Washington. High Washington scores were Ryan's 200 game and Reinken's 554 total.

St. Mary's moved a notch above Oregon by defeating the Oregon squad in two games. Feavel topped a 201 game and 525 series to lead the Montana scoring and A. Denny's 215 and 483 counts were high for Oregon.

Champ Will Fight Anyone Who Can Draw A Big Gate

BY CHARLES DUNKLEY

STONE LAKE, Wis.—(AP)—Whom would James J. Braddock, world's heavyweight champion, rather fight—Joe Louis or Max Baer?

It makes no difference to him. "Frankly," Braddock said today as he sunned himself in a big, wooden lawn chair, "the man I want to meet is the one who will draw the biggest gate, and that's Louie. I'm sure we'll be in the ring in Chicago, June 22. My manager, Joe Gould, told me to do the training, and let him do the worrying over threatened court action. That suits me."

Which fighter would be the easier opponent?

Braddock says there is a right way to fight either one.

"I have studied the styles of both, and I am convinced I've got their number," the champion smiled.

Braddock is disappointed in the lingering winter weather conditions which have made road work impossible on the dirt roads leading to his camp on Little Lake Sissabema. The roads are almost impassable to automobiles with chains. Trainer Robb Lippman put the clamps on road work for fear Braddock might sprain an ankle. Snow still blankets the countryside, and 30 inches of ice cover the lake.

As a result Braddock works for two hours daily swinging his double bladed axe on hard maples. He displays fine form, perfect aim and tremendous power. Blisters are developing on his hands.

The champion engaged a male cook so that he can eat what he wants in the privacy of his three-roomed log cabin. His sparring mates, Charles Massera of Pittsburgh and Jack McCarthy of Boston, and Trainer Lippman eat and sleep with him. The new skillful expert is William Washburn of Hayward, Wis.

Name Captains of U. W. Grid Squads

Four Teams Will Play Round Robin Schedule for Month

Madison—Four coaches and captains of Wisconsin's four spring football squads—Yale, Harvard, Princeton and Dartmouth—were named by head coach Harry Stuhldreher today.

The Badgers will play a round-robin tournament, two each Saturday until May 15 when Stuhldreher will divide the entire squad of 96 into two teams for the intra-squad championship. The first games will be played this Saturday at Camp Randall.

Robert Reagan line coach, will direct the Yale team captained by Vernon Peak. Eau Claire, veteran end. The Harvard squad will be led by Neil Pohl, center, of Milwaukee, and will be coached by Fred Twomey, end mentor.

Wally Cole, Madison guard, was named captain of the Princeton eleven which will be coached by Frank Jordan, backfield coach. The fourth team, Dartmouth, will be handled by Russ Rippe, freshman mentor and captained by Fred Benz, end, Milwaukee.

City Leaguers Called For Meeting Friday

American City league softball managers, who are harder to get together than to collect an old account, will meet at 7.30 Friday evening at the Y. M. C. A. to elect officers and plan for the coming season. The league has been scheduled to meet several times but managers fail to show up. The circuit expects to show eight teams this summer.

BRADDOCK HAS DOUBLE

Stone Lake—(AP)—Briefs from heavyweight champion Jim Braddock's training camp in northern Wisconsin:

Sparring partner Jack McCarthy's resemblance to Braddock has many of the natives shaking hands with the wrong fighter.

There is a parrot in the main lodge of the camp, and the boys are trying to teach it to say, "Hello, Charro." McCarthy is trying to teach the bird cuss words when no one is around.

The major domo of camp is Eddie Long, one-time manager of Sammy Macdell, former light-weight champion, and Bud Taylor, the Terro Haute Terrier. Long is representing Joe Trimmer, chairman of the Illinois State Athletic commission.

Nether Braddock nor Long has shaved since arriving at camp last Sunday.

Braddock goes in for a mouse colored car, heavy work shoes, old grey trousers and a couple sweaters—coats—the top one a brilliant green.

There's a Swedish friend of Karl Ogren, camp owner, here who's a screamer at murdering the English language. Says the Swedish friend: "It took me five years to learn to say 'jam' and now they call it 'vel'."

Menasha Southpaws Win Match Pin Game

Little Chute—(AP)—Pop Currie, who manages the Wonders alleys here, and who recalls all the antics left handed baseball players go through, gathered together a couple left handed bowling teams last night for a match game. One was composed of Little Chute bowlers and it lost a decision to the Broadway Taverns of Menasha, 2-649 to 2,338.

The difficulty was that Southpaw R. Stup of the Menasha team showed a 219 and 214 and a 628 series to pace his team. Greg Hartjes had a 548 series for the Chuteers. Another match will be held at Menasha soon.

After taking a three run lead in the first inning, the Brewers ran into trouble in the second frame and Allan Johnson, Pulaski, Wis., left-hander, forced in four of the Jersey City runs.

LIKE the hair on their heads, most men take their roofs for granted—until trouble begins.

Fortunately roofing troubles are easier to prevent than falling hair, even though a leaking roof can do far more damage.

A leaking roof has a habit of hiding its defect until damage has been done. Rain water trickles down between your hollow walls, but the first thing you notice is water-soaked plaster. Then your pocketbook faces a roof repairing job and a re-decorating job all at the same time.

Why run these risks when you can have your roof examined free of charge? If your roof is O.K. our experts will tell you so. If repairs are necessary we will give you a free estimate. Could anything be fairer? Just ring or write us today.

Fertilizer Costs Show Drop Over 40-Year Period

Business Revolutionized Since 1897 by Research And Discoveries

Fertilizer prices, measured in terms of plant-food units and then compared with the general trend of all prices, have declined consistently for 40 years, a department of agriculture report to R. C. Swanson, county agent, states.

Relatively, fertilizers now cost just about half as much as in the 5 years, 1890 to 1894, the base period for an analysis by A. L. Mehring, of the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils, United States Department of Agriculture. Since about 1897, the business has been revolutionized, largely as the result of research and discovery, and the changes are continuing.

From available records and with allowances for differences in terms of sale, Mehring prepared lists of yearly changes in fertilizer prices reduced to plant-food units. The price of a ton of mixed fertilizer would not have been a reliable guide, because fertilizers have become higher in plant-food content. Until 1934 the cost of the potash in the mixtures fluctuated somewhat, but in general stayed close to or above the general index for all commodities. Muriate of potash was an imported product. In the last 3 years the development of American supplies has caused prices to dip sharply.

More Plant Food
The cost of a ton of superphosphate has not declined 50 percent but a ton now has more plant food. The phosphoric-acid content was first increased from 11 per cent to 16 per cent and then further increased by introduction of double and triple superphosphate.

Compared with other commodities the cost of phosphoric-acid salts in fertilizers in 1935 was just half the cost in 1890-94. Dried blood as a standard source of organic nitrogen cost even more in 1935 than in the base period but for sulfate of soda and sulfate of ammonia, which have been substituted in large part in most fertilizer mixtures for organic materials like dried blood, the index figures in 1935 were 47 and 39.

Smoking While in Bed Is Dangerous Practice

Fire is a constant threat to the home, the National Safety Council warns in listing precautionary measures in a bulletin received at the Appleton Chamber of Commerce office. One dangerous habit which often causes fires is smoking in bed, the council says. All electrical equipment should be kept in good repair. They should be disconnected when not in use. Only rags should be burned and oil moss should be kept out in open air. Flammable material never should be kept in closets.

Stomach Gas So Bad Seems To Hurt Heart

"The gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart seemed to hurt. A friend suggested Adlerika. The first dose I took brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine and never feel better."

—Mrs. J. J. Filler.
Adlerika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels while ordinary laxatives act on the lower bowel only. Adlerika gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old, poisonous matter that you would not believe was in your system and that has been causing gas pains, sour stomach, nervousness and headaches for months.

Dr. H. L. Shoup, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adlerika greatly reduces bacteria and color 'buildup'." Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adlerika and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and stomach constipation. At all leading druggists.

Police Car Bids Turned Over to City Commission

Aldermen Decide to Await Recommendation of Fire and Police Committee

Kaukauna—The city council last night opened and read bids from four local automobile dealers on a plain squad car and on one equipped for ambulance cases and then referred them to the fire and police committee with the request that the body's recommendations be made at the next meeting of the council Tuesday, April 13.

The meeting will be called a week early on the word of Alderman Oscar Alger that certain orders on equipment for the disposal plant must be authorized by the council before the middle of the month.

Mention of the fire and police committee, first to be made in the council for some time, was made by Alderman Otto M. Ludike when Mayor John Niesen suggested that Lester Brenzel, city clerk, proceed to open the bids.

"I think we should leave the bids to this and police committee," Ludike said and was promptly joined by Alderman Raymond Nagel and Alger.

Pass Resolution

The council unanimously passed Ludike's resolution to refer the proposals to the committee after accepting the advice of Harry McAndrews, city attorney, to open them first.

During the brief discussion, Alderman W. H. Cooper asked McAndrews if the commission has the exclusive authority to buy equipment for the fire and police department. "It seems to me that according to the statute books, they have the power," Cooper said.

McAndrews read the statute to the council which states that the fire and police board can be given the exclusive right to contract for and buy equipment and to authorize other bills of the two departments only when given such power by the vote of the people in a referendum.

"If this authority has not been vested in the commission—and it has not in this city—it rests solely with the council," McAndrews said.

Each of the four dealers entered two sets of bids, the first on a 2-door sedan and the second on a 4-door sedan equipped with a stretcher and first-aid kits. The dealers and their respective quotations on the two cars are as follows: William Van Lieshout garage (1) $747 (2) $955; Gurnee Motor company (1) $760, (2) $1,010; Kaukauna Motor Car company (1) $765, (2) $1,010; Gustman Chevrolet Sales (1) $755 (2) $1,020.

The Kaukauna office of the Appleton Post-Crescent is located in the Jules Merites barbershop on Wisconsin avenue. Don Anderson is the correspondent in charge and the telephone number is 107. Subscribers may call this number until 6:30 in the evening if their papers were not delivered.

Minkebig Wins City Bowling Championship

Kaukauna—Henry Minkebigge, the city individual bowling champion last night at Schell alleys when he ran up a 616-pin total in four games to defeat John Emmerman, who spilled 648 pins. Minkebigge put together games of 203, 245, 185 and 183 pins to take four straight victories. Emmerman showed scores of 183, 134, 160 and 171 pins for his efforts.

Minkebigge's average for 19 games of tournament competition was 206 pins, while Emmerman showed a 185-pin average for 23 games. It is expected that Minkebigge will enter competition with bowling champions in other valley communities.

Police Chief Asks For Lesser Penalty In Traffic Cases

Kaukauna—A smaller fine for "minor infractions" of traffic regulations, like improper parking, and faulty headlights, was recommended to the council last night by Police Chief James McFadden.

"If we arrest anyone for violations of this kind and he is found guilty in justice court, he must pay a $1 fine and costs of $4.75, a total of $5.75," the chief pointed out. "I believe this to be too stiff in many cases and that just a $1 fine paid to the police department, for example would be sufficient."

McFadden said that Sheboygan and Green Bay have both adopted this lesser penalty for minor traffic violations and that it has worked successfully. Alderman Arnold Vander Loop proposed that McFadden's plan be submitted to the fire and police commission for study.

Rotarians Told of Ways to Prevent Spread of Cancer

Giving Medical Knowledge Is Way of Fighting Disease, Says Speaker

Kaukauna—The curing of chronic irritations in the body, frequent physical examinations, especially after a person has moved past middle age, and the spreading of medical knowledge among laymen are the best ways of fighting cancer, according to a paper read by Dr. George A. Ritchie of Appleton before the Kaukauna Rotary club at a noon luncheon at Hotel Kaukauna yesterday.

"There is no medicine known to medical science which will cure this disease," the doctor said. "Don't try to cure cancer yourself for no method which you could use has as yet proven effective."

By the removal of the cancerous portion through surgery and by radium treatments, modern medicine is able to cure many cases. Dr. Ritchie stated, but if people affected by the disease "do not recognize the symptoms early enough, it may be too late."

Symptoms of Cancer

Conditions which may be symptoms of cancer and which should lead a person to have a medical examination are as follows: (1) A lump on the body which is firm but not painful, often on the breast. (2) Chronic skin trouble or sores that fail to heal. (3) Chronic disorders of the respiratory, digestive, and circulatory systems. (4) Persistent loss of appetite. (5) A bodily weakness without cause.

While communicable diseases, like typhoid and tuberculosis are being successfully curbed by medical science, cancer has had a tremendous growth in the past 20 years, the doctor pointed out in his paper.

"This heavy increase with no change in the people does not seem to indicate a hereditary factor. Scientific investigation does not support the belief that cancer is a disease to which the known laws of heredity can be applied."

Hearing Planned Here on Friday On Dairy Plan

Discuss Uniform Plan for Dairy Payments to Producers

Madison—A conference for the purpose of developing a uniform plan for quotations and payments made by dairy plants to producers hauling milk in the Winnebago land area will be held in Appleton April 9, at 1:30 p. m. at the Conway hotel. Commissioner F. Schultheiss of the department of agriculture and markets announced today.

Schultheiss said the department has found that some dairy plants in that region quote and pay the producer a price for his milk based on the butter fat test in some cases allowing part of the hauling at different rates and in others making no allowances for this hauling charge.

"Where it is customary to allow part of the hauling charges we find such allowances at variance, confusing to the producers, and resulting in unfair competition," he asserted.

This practice, he charged, is interfering with milk control enforcement in cities in the Winnebago land area.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those aching, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 quarts a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, lumbago, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness, tired, sore, headache and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Pegler Scores This Way Of Securing Confession

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

Washington—According to the papers that I read, the father of Veronica Gedeon, the little New York model who was murdered Easter Sunday, was questioned for 30 hours and emerged from this experience with two bruises on his nose. The bruises may represent fair wear and tear although a man in police custody should be safe from accidents and the burden of proof rests on the cops.

However a 30-hour examination is nothing but an attempt to break down a man by main strength and any time a confession is obtained this way it should be tossed out of court by the judge if the prosecutor hasn't the decency to spurn it himself.

Homer Cummings did this several years ago when he was the state prosecutor in Bridgeport, Conn., and made a celebrated case of a matter which, in other hands, might have been merely a routine killing and a cheap, minor-league hanging.

Old Homer just smelled something and though the prisoner had made a complete confession which dovetailed with the evidence, he set out to break down the confession and proved to the satisfaction of the court that the accused was not the man who shot Father Dahme.

They never found out who did shoot the priest but Old Homer definitely showed that the killing was not the doing of the man who had put his name to the confession. The prisoner was not too robust mentally being neither a half-wit nor a heavyweight but just a little on the flabby side and Homer told the judge that such a man might weaken under constant questioning and confess to every unsolved crime since the Cain and Able case, just to get the cops out of his hair.

Old Homer also had to break down the expert testimony of several authorities on the pretentious but somewhat fallible not to say phoney, science of ballistics and it was further necessary for the prosecutor to discredit the word of several casual informers and impugn the sincerity of at least one.

His state prosecutor threw down his own case when he might have had a hanging.

But Much Less Explicit in Income Tax Cases

He was much less confidential and explicit with the public in a similar course of action last year when he waived the prosecution of the income tax cases against some of Huey Long's gang in New Orleans.

In that case he merely said he had detected a change of atmosphere, a strange generalism from one who, in a previous case has been so careful to explain away apparent guilt. This motive followed Huey's death and the political reconciliation commonly called the second Louisiana purchase and did Old Homer less honor than the other.

However, the attorney general of the U. S. A. is definitely among those who doubt the reliability of confessions wrung from fuddled and frightened laymen in an atmosphere of steel bars handcuffs, disinfectants and bulldozing suspicion.

The mental state of an experienced man yanked out of his home at night or grabbed out from behind his counter at the grocery store to face a lot of hard-faced bulls and a couple of tricky prosecutors of the wheedling, friendly type, hour after weary hour, is not

It's some Welcome you're handing us and Our Family's Whiskey!

It appears to me like our Family's Whiskey comes pretty close to being about as good a known whiskey as any there is.

But you got to remember it isn't just William and Tom and me that's responsible for this extra grand taste our Family's Whiskey has got. That wouldn't be handing the proper credit to Grandpa Wilken and Pa Wilken. If it wasn't for the lot of us Wilkens being whiskey making people since I don't know when, you never could be enjoying all this tastiness we've learned how to put into our personal Family's Recipe!

Don't Overlook Medicine Chest in Spring Cleaning

Madison—Spring-clean the family medicine chest when giving the rest of the house its spring-cleaning, suggested the State Medical Society in their health bulletin today.

"An examination of the family medicine chest will reveal in many cases an assortment of loose razor blades, corkless bottles, atomizers with no bulbs, and medicines that have become worthless because of their age, and yet that medicine chest will be turned to in an emergency. Be prepared for that emergency by having the medicine cabinet carefully arranged and in good order.

Safest Items

"Simple emergency preparations are the safest items to be included in the cabinet. Common table salt should be included for use as a gargle, mouthwash, or a douche. Common baking soda is also effective in first-aid treatment of burns and temporary intestinal disturbances. Other accessories should include a clinical thermometer, an antiseptic solution for minor wounds, a hot-water bottle, sterilized gauze and cotton.

"Great care should be exercised before adding other items to this emergency health shelf. Miscellaneous medicines and prescriptions which have been prescribed by the physician through the year and which are not used for any present illness, should be discarded. All bottles, boxes or other containers that are kept in the cabinet should all be properly labeled as to their contents, use, dosage, and date of purchase. Prescriptions that are

Ordinance of 1913 Reveals Speed Was Considered Risky

Evidence that the move to reduce the speed of vehicles traveling upon public roads is not a new idea has been found among documents discovered by WPA employees in work on files in the office of the county clerk.

An ordinance, dated 1913, provides that it shall be, and is hereby made, unlawful for any person or persons to drive, ride or lead any horse, horses or any other animal upon or over that portion of the steel and concrete bridge commonly known as the Kimberly-Vandenberg bridge, located and situated within the corporate limits of said town of Vandenberg, at a gate or rate of speed, faster than, or in excess of, a walk."

Plans for the 1-day religious institute in Appleton this month also will be considered.

Recount Reveals Poepke Is Winner By Single Vote

Defeats Leo Meshke for Supervisor From
First Ward

New London—Like Poepke held his margin of one vote over Leo Meshke for supervisor from first ward, 217 to 216, after a recount by a special committee of the common council at the regular meeting last night.

Irvin Ziebell was declared elected to city constable by four votes from the fourth ward to succeed John Rockaby who was appointed to fill the unexpired term left by the death of Fred Holtz. Ziebell will serve two years. The office was omitted from the city ballots entirely and Ziebell was elected by several friends who wrote his name and the position on the slips.

An ordinance to limit the number of taverns in New London was referred back to the license committee for further investigation and consideration at the next regular meeting.

Without Levee, Bernard Westphal and Alvin Ebert were granted barenders licenses.

Victor Thomas, city building inspector, was authorized to order printed forms for use by his office. The question of permit fees will be taken up at the next council meeting.

The mayor and council will hold an informal meeting at the city hall next Tuesday with City Attorney Giles H. Pugh and Engineer Robert M. Connelley on the question of R. B. Rasmussen's claims in the flood control problem.

A claim of $40 doctor bill and indemnity of $1 per day for nine weeks was submitted by George Van Tassel because of a fractured right elbow he received when he fell on an icy sidewalk in January. He asked to receive the indemnity claim in wages as care taker at the city dump. The matter was referred to the city attorney.

More New Books Placed On Shelves at Library

Ladies Prepare
For Annual Meet
Of Association

New London—Four more books, three of them adventure novels, were added to the adult shelves of the New London Public Library today. The other is a selected, rearranged and modern presentation of the Bible by Ernest Sutherland Bates. The edition is written as literary appreciation rather than theological or reference purposes.

"Lancer at Large" by Francis Veats-Brown, author of the "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," presents a vivid picture of the new, more modern India and is a medley of the old and the new. Another of the works of Hobart, author of "Oil for the Lamps of China," is "Yang and Yini." The novel concerns a young American doctor giving his life to service in a small hospital in a Chinese mission to the care of the sick, to research and to fighting the opium trade.

An exciting and breathtaking mystery story on the high seas is unfolded in the adventures of Simon Templar in "Saint Overboard" by Charteris.

Two books were added to the Junior department, "Tom Sawyer Abroad" and "Man Before History," the latter stories about the first men who lived on the earth.

In the children's department new books are: "Lupus Goes to School," "Green and Gold," a picture story of the banana; "Three Little Pigs," and "Nonsense A B C's."

Ask Commercial Street Paving be Delayed a Year

Neenah Council Receives Second Petition From Property Owners

Neenah—Another monkey wrench was thrown into the machinery of the N. Commercial street paving project when a petition was received by the common council at its meeting in the city hall last evening stating that the planned street widening and resurfacing work should be postponed a year in order that state and county aid could be solicited.

A petition was presented at the last session asking that steps be taken to compel the power company to remove rails and brick from the street and stand the cost of subsequent repair, suggested an investigation to determine the condition of gas mains and requested that a maximum cost to property owners be established. Both petitions were signed by abutting property owners and have been referred to the committee on public improvements.

New Alderman Is Youngest Elected In Menasha History

He is 24 years old and will be officially seated at the April 20 meeting of the common council. He is active in the Junior Chamber of Commerce, Lions club and church committees.

New Philosophy Is Dangerous to U. S., Says Taylor

New Idea Claims Successful Have Injured Country, Speaker Declares

Neenah—Charging that a new philosophy, propaganda for which is circulated at private and public expense, has begun in America and if continued will ruin America "to the nameless dust from which it sprung," Carl Taylor, Milwaukee, executive secretary of the Wisconsin Building and Loan league, told Kiwanis members at the Valley Inn Wednesday noon that it was their responsibility to change that philosophy.

"It is the philosophy that those who have succeeded have done injury to the country. The capable are looked upon with disrespect. Until that philosophy is changed, America will continue to march backward."

"What has made America great," declared Mr. Taylor, "is not that it has 76 per cent of all the automobiles in the world, that it owns and operates 80 per cent of all the telephones in the world, that it has the highest standard of living in all the world. It is not because it is endowed with great natural resources and has rich agricultural lands, that it is the melting pot of the world."

His Greatness

"America's greatness lies in the fact that it is the only country where any man or woman can go just as far as his own ability and initiative allow him to go and the community will pay proportionately for his services. It is a heritage that has been built out of the soil of America, out of those experiences that make up America."

"There is no other place in the world that Henry Ford or Thomas Edison, sons of poor men, could have had the opportunity to use their marvelous brains to give the world what they did."

"But we have been asleep for 20 years. We are allowing crackpots and malcontents to sell our heritage because they are dreaming in their ignorance that there is a Utopia in the government of other countries, or that a new Utopia will come with the new philosophy."

They Do Not Believe

"There are those who march with banners bearing inscriptions that Russia is a better country than ours, that capitalism is wrong, that churches and religious precepts are a delusion; and there is no American flag in the parade, only the hammer and sickle. There are those who believe that we must spend money and expend energy expounding their ideas. There are several 100 of those people in your own community and you owe a duty to your country to point out to them wherein lies America's greatness since they do not believe in it. Businessmen have been so busy engaged in making money that they haven't had time to tell these people about what a very great country America is. However, the time has come when we must talk about the greatness of this new philosophy unless we wish to risk losing the greatness that is America's heritage of her people."

Mastery of Reading Is Difficult for Youngster

Menasha—Declaring that no child has to surmount any greater difficulty than mastery of reading, Miss Martha Sorensen, grade school supervisor, Appleton, urged Nicolet and Jefferson school mothers at a meeting at the school Wednesday afternoon, to accept some of the responsibility of preparing a child for reading.

"Don't throw all responsibility on the school," Miss Sorensen stated, "it's partly your job too. Be interested in your child. Be tolerant of his shortcomings and defects. Don't scold him if his grades are poor, find out the reason. Above all, do your talking with your teacher first, before you talk it over across a bridge."

"It must be remembered that the whole child comes to school, not just his brain; for intellectual, physical and personal factors, together condition reading readiness."

Miss Sorensen discussed each of the factors and their relation to preparing the child for reading, illustrating her discussion with examples of cases in her experience.

No Development

Many children do not develop mentally in accordance with their physical age was the contention of Miss Sorensen as she expressed the idea that children should not go from kindergarten into first grade until they have a mental age of six and a half or seven. The teacher and the tests can best determine that said the speaker.

"Breath of experience in the home gives the teacher something upon which to build. The larger the child's experience the better fitted is he to master reading."

"If you have a left handed child, don't ever be guilty of changing it," said Miss Sorensen as she quoted statistics to show that a change from left hand to right is a frequent cause of disorders in speech."

Miss Sorensen also stressed the importance of emotional stability, in which the parents have a direct responsibility, and good work habits, again the responsibility of the parents. She concluded her talk with listing new books that would provide interesting reading for parents.

Fishing and Game Clubs at War Over Pike Regulations

Twin City Group Opposed To Angling Before April 20

Neenah — Feeling between the Twin City Rod and Gun club and the Upper Wolf River Conservation League was apparent today with the disclosure of a letter from the New London group to the Neenah-Menasha unit by A. W. Hass, local president, and the letter in answer to various charges.

Friction has arisen as the result of a recent ruling of the state conservation commission changing the date for the opening of spring fishing in Lake Winnebago and its tributaries from April 20 to Saturday, April 10.

The New London group points out that rod and line fishing will never deplete streams and that the pike run which is productive for approximately 10 days is usually over by April 20. Citizens of the upper valley pay taxes and buy licenses to support conservation and demand that they be allowed to participate in pike fishing at the opportune time.

Must Have Conservation

"It is distinctly apparent that some means of conservation must be adopted to preserve the specie and if we are in any way hampered in the future we will bring pressure to bear on the commission to close pike fishing not only in the Fox and Wolf rivers but all the lake region which your club is so jealously guarding," the letter says.

The Twin City club, however, points out that it fought for the closing of Winnebago waters to night fishing and for the elimination of all fishing in Winnebago waters until after all spawning by popular varieties of fish.

A special meeting recently combined the offices of city physician and health commissioner and prohibited the physician from doing private practice, exact duties of the office were not defined.

Council approval was given to recommendations of the street and bridge committee to purchase a cement mixer from the Hunter Machinery company for $665, a 15-ton truck from Gibson Tire and Battery company for $295 and a 1-ton truck from the Weber Motor company for $303.50.

Not Low Bids

Charging that the committee did not recommend the low bids on the mixer and truck, Alderman Knapp asked that they be referred back to the committee. His motion was lost when it failed to receive a second and he voted against the recommendations.

Alderman Thompson said the committee had recommended what it thought best and stated it was impossible to specify just how machines should operate or be equipped when advertising for bids because of the many different types.

Reappointment of George S. Ward and Hubert W. Wallace to the board of appeals for 3-year terms by the mayor was approved by the council. The current terms of the two board members expire this month.

Ask for Opinion

City Attorney Harry H. Hoffel was asked for an opinion on whether it is legal to put water mains in streets with property owners paying assessments when connections are made.

The problem was brought to the attention of the council when the fire and water committee recommended that a main be laid on Kerman avenue from Fremont street to Calumet street under such a plan. No action will be taken on the matter until a report is made by Hoffel.

Mayor Goodland opposed the recommendation, saying it wasn't fair to other property owners in the city. Delayed payment could be provided through bonds issued for 10 years with small annual payments, he said.

Want Water Mains

The council approved the committee's recommendation that water mains be laid on Maple street from Lave street east on E. Alice street from N. Drew to N. Union street and on E. Nicholas street from N. Oneida to N. Morrison street.

Considerable discussion on the proposed Kerman avenue main followed. Alderman Brautigam's plea that it be installed he pointed out that the plan was suggested because of the large unoccupied area owned by residents on the street and that there is no fire protection for the tax payers in that section at the present time. A similar plan was used on Fremont street, he said.

No Favoritism

Alderman Vogt argued that the Fremont street main was laid primarily to provide water for the golf course. The delayed payment plan was used so that no favoritism would be shown to residents along the street by allowing them to connect with the main without assessment, he said.

Mayor Goodland said he was not opposed to giving the residents water, but insisted that they be assessed through the regular procedure or use the bonding plan. The city attorney advised that if residents are to be allowed to pay when they connect to mains, a record of the assessment against the property be kept so that a purchaser at a later date could tell from the abstract that the assessment must be paid in case a connection was made.

EVE'S ORCHARD

By MARGARET WIDDEMER

SYNOPSIS: Eve Mannersfield and Denny Carter are giving a party at Eve's apartment to announce their engagement. Slim, proud Denny has landed a publicity job with Southern Star Line, so they plan a globe-circling honeymoon. Eve has already resigned her job. Her only distress is at losing tenants from her old Connecticut house. Mimi, a plump, wealthy little widow, brings quiet, polite George, a pomologist, to the party. Talking to him about orchards and kitchens, Eve recalls her Aunt Lina's big, sunny kitchen.

Chapter Five

DILLARD BREAKS THE NEWS

Eve felt sudden small sharp elbows digging into her knees. The Featherstone's 9-year-old Judge. They always brought him to parties.

"Did you have an outdoors with grass?" demanded Judge feverishly, "and a slingshot?"

Eve stared down at the child in surprise. George reached a deft hand out to the gruff-voiced small boy and drew him close, with the easy touch he would have used on a frightened animal. "Like outdoors, son?"

"Sure, so do I," said George. "The kind you can ride a bicycle or a pony in."

"Did you have them?"

George nodded.

"Yep. That kind of outdoors—big."

Marilyn's high voice carried across the room above "Night and Day" being passionately cheated at the tiny studio upright by three men and a girl. "Listen to Judge going all out for the great outdoors!"

There was a yell of laughter. Marilyn and Peter were always lending them trips and treats, of which they spoke with grateful enmities. They sat side by side, both tall and angular and easy. Peter had an eagle's aquiline face and a black loc talking into his eyes. Marilyn was dark-colored. Tonight she had on Chanel that somebody else referred to as "my darling Amy" had worn only once, and the slippers had been Eve's own rose-lane, which had matched the frock so incredibly that Eve had eagerly handed them over for good after Marilyn had borrowed them twice. Marilyn had a soft enthusiastic manner that seemed a part of her looks. She was large-eyed, with a hollow-cheeked sweet shallow face shaded by lengths of rather stringy mouse-colored hair cut like a child's.

She put her hand back in Peter's and smiled at Dillard. Her smile made her seem to love everyone. Dillard was not so fussed. He snuggled at them, sitting up straight and froglike, solemn with too much of the gin he condemned. "I think it's bie! that I couldn't help naming him for him." Marilyn was explaining now to Jack and a circle around them. "Just look at him now!"

"Isn't He A Scram?"

They stared across at the scrawny child with the deep eyes and frowning eyebrows and stiffly pressed lips, and everybody shrieked again. They always did. Eve had made Judge her friend for life on one of these occasions. His father had said gaily: "See Judge go for the most improving book in the room! I bet anything it's 'Lives of Great Americans.'" Judge plans to grow up and have ideals, don't you, son?" And Eve, pitying the wriggling child had thrown an arm around him and said: "I think it's splendid of him. Of course he will." Judge said nothing, but always after that he made himself useful in a brownie-like way when they brought him to Eve's place. He picked up a tray, and piled it with cigar stubs, now escaping from the room.

"Isn't he a scram?" his mother went on when he came back. "He's all that keeps us from decay now we can't afford a maid. We oppress you with toil, don't we, darling, baby?"

"No, I do it myself," Judge said, slipping behind Eve and George.

Dillard Betz interrupted. "Eve, where'd you get this stuff? 'S rot ten."

"Ask Den," said Eve, a little annoyed. "He got it."

Marilyn took her hand out of Peter's and said: "Way, Dill. I think Eve's the sweetest thing to give a party to all I was just going to ask to be sent a gallon. You know we're back to the world till the Blessed Divs' depends drop in June first."

Marilyn and Peter were like that. They said nice comforting things. They always said it was a pretty fine world with damned decent folk in it. And the fact seemed to justify them: people were always lending them apartments and giving them trips and treats, of which they spoke with grateful enmities. They sat side by side, both tall and angular and easy. Peter had an eagle's aquiline face and a black loc talking into his eyes. Marilyn was dark-colored. Tonight she had on Chanel that somebody else referred to as "my darling Amy" had worn only once, and the slippers had been Eve's own rose-lane, which had matched the frock so incredibly that Eve had eagerly handed them over for good after Marilyn had borrowed them twice. # FOLKS GROW OLD FASTER AFTER 40 WHEN BODIES ARE SLOWLY POISONED

How Sluggish Liver, Poor Stomach and Intestines Cause Old Age

Because of neglect many folks allow themselves to grow old before their time. When the liver, stomach, kidneys and intestines are not functioning properly old age comes faster. Bodies are gradually poisoned, a person feels run down, tired, nervous and can't sleep. They lose their appetite, can't digest the food they do eat, they become weak, and in time other symptoms appear. Many friends begin to pity them and feel sorry for them in their premature old age.

DON'T GIVE UP
If you are one of these—what are you going to do about it? Are you going to allow your body to become one of those slow, sluggish old cranks pined by age and weariness? NO! You can't. You don't want to be in that class so why not do something about it? Buy a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. # Raps Bill for Closed Season During Spawning

Madison—(U)—Assemblyman Frank Graess (R), Sturgeon Bay, leading the opposition to a bill for a strictly closed season for fish in outlying waters during spawning declared before the assembly conservation committee yesterday the measure would put the state's lake trout hatcheries "out of business."

The present law forbids setting of hooks or nets in Lake Michigan or the northern part of Green Bay from Oct. 15 to Nov. 20 except under permits of the conservation commission.

The commission authorized a small group of fishermen to operate during this period under an agreement by which they take spawn for state trout hatcheries at Sheboygan and Sturgeon Bay. The bill would forbid any fishing during this time.

David Le Clair of Madison, formerly of Two Rivers, at whose request the bill was introduced, charged the permit system has become a "racket" and that the commission thus grants "special privileges" to some 25 fishermen.

Schneider Favors Employees Having Bargaining Power

National Labor Relations Act Should be Passed, He Says

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)
Washington—Continued application of the National Labor Relations act, according to Representative George J. Schneider of Appleton, is the only hope for quelling labor disturbances now so prevalent.

What ever may be the ruling of the Supreme Court on this law, Schneider said, there can be no question as to the justification and necessity for such legislation in the mind of anyone who has read the decision of the National Labor Relations board in the Remington Rand case.

Schneider points out that in its decision on that case the board declared that through its president, James H. Rand, Jr., the company had exhibited a "calculated and deliberate disregard of the rights of its employees" in its assumption of power over the lives of men and snuffing out the status of the modern industrial worker.

No Interference
"The National Labor Relations board," Schneider declared, "seeks to secure for workers the right to belong to labor unions of their choice without interference from employers and to guarantee to labor the right of collective bargaining."

That workers may bargain with employers to their greatest advantage, is necessary, he continued, their rights to do so should not be denied or minimized by their employer. The law aims to permit a balance of power between the parties, and it is believed that this in itself will make for greater peace in industry and obviate the disturbance now so prevalent.

As a result of its investigation of the Remington Rand case, the board ordered the company to bargain collectively with its employees and the reinstatement of 4,000 employees to jobs formerly held by them.

"Without the protection of this act," said Schneider, a member of the house labor committee, "the workers would have no effective recourse against a ruthless corporation which attempts to exercise over its employees a control that amounts to economic slavery, and does not carry with it the essential qualities of a decent human relationship."

extravagant. I suppose Dan thought he had that big publicity job with the Southern Star landed when he bought it. I heard today they'd all gone floozy, since the Lona was rammed and they fired the whole top rank of the personnel!"

And then she caught sight of Denny's face; always betraying, it was wholly miserable. And she remembered that he had been trying to tell her something when he came. This Marilyn sympathized.

Somebody said, "Oh shut up and have another drink, Du'ard." And everybody else began talking loudly at once, and another awful soul started "Nigh and Day" again on the piano. The party, after a momentary jar, went on.

Marilyn picked her long self gently off the divan and slipped across to Eve followed by Peter. Not much got by Marilyn and her worshipping Peter.

"Oh darling, is it true?" she whispered under cover of the music. "We were all so happy when we heard you'd thrown over your job and Den had the promise of this new one. We love you so, we couldn't help putting two and two together. It's true, you have resigned, haven't you?"

Eve made herself smile and nod. "I don't know whether the story about Denny is true, but it is about me. But—surprise! I wanted a summer in the country. I thought I might work out something—writing, you know. My aunt's old house in Connecticut. I'll be 'tenant' last week."

"Oh!" Marilyn looked a little dashed. "Then my romance wasn't quite true after all. Well, anyway, I hate the firm that did down you. Denny—you do too, don't you? I'm going to put a curse on the whole shipping firm. I hate them! And oh, darling, you're giving up this darling apartment where we've all had such grand parties!"

"The house is bigger," Eve said. She felt she couldn't stand much more of this.
